CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

There is a popular saying which goes, "Lay down your aces against a slam contract." That is often the best defence when the slam is bid in a suit, but it is of very doubtful value against a six no trump contract.

An ace is seldom lost at no trump, and to take it in immediately is often playing directly into the declarer's hand. However, the West player in the following hand selected the wrong time to unload his ace, and a clever squeeze by the declarer caused him to lose it entirely.

3-9-7-2	10-8-5
A-K-8-6	5-10-9-7
3-6	7-5-4
3-4-3	9-7-5
♠ J-6-4-3	♠ 10-8-5
♥ 2	♥ 5-10-9-7
♦ J-10-9-8	♦ 7-5-4
♣ A-J-10-9	♣ 9-7-5
North	South
♠ A-K	♠ 10-8-5
♥ Q-J-3	♥ 5-10-9-7
♦ A-K-8-3-2	♦ 7-5-4
♣ 7-6-2	♣ 9-7-5

The Bidding.

South opened with one diamond to which North responded with one heart—a one over one force. South next bid three no trump.

Far from being a sign-off, this declaration showed a hand of tremendous strength and was an urgent invitation to try for a slam. North responded with four no trump and this was all the encouragement that South needed to carry the bidding to six no trump, which became the final contract.

The Play.

West could have played his ace of clubs, thereby making sure that the contract would be held to six. However, by leading the jack of clubs, he would have at least a fair chance to establish another trick in that suit.

Accordingly, he selected that lead, and South won in her own hand with the king of clubs. She now played the queen and jack of hearts, and when West discarded a club on the second heart trick she knew he would be desperately squeezed by a continuation of that suit.

A small heart was led to dummy's king, on which West discarded the ten of clubs, but when the ace of hearts was led he was in a hopeless dilemma.

To discard the ace of clubs was out of the question, and since the declarer had bid diamonds it seemed advisable to keep all possible strength in that suit. West's best discard was a small spade, but on seeing the discard the declarer immediately led two rounds of that suit and entered dummy again with the queen of diamonds.

The queen of spades now dropped the jack and ten together, and when the nine of spades was led, West was again squeezed. To discard the ace of clubs would establish dummy's queen, and a diamond discard would allow the declarer to make all the remaining tricks in that suit.

Therefore South made seven no trump and West's ace was very effectually put to sleep.

RESOLVE TO GET WELL!

And no half measures about it! Resolve to get back your former vigour and happiness. You know it would be worth the effort. To get rid of that half-alive feeling, that physical weakness, that inability to concentrate on mental work; to be able to eat what you like without a qualm, to enjoy life as other people do around you.

Certainly it's worth it. And so little needed to achieve success—a steady course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Not a half-hearted one—for you cannot expect results in a day. But Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will surely and with certainty build up the blood which has become weak and scanty, replenishing your veins and organs with a new and invigorating supply of the vital, life-giving fluid.

Commence without delay. The sooner you start the sooner you will be on the high-road to abounding health, vigour and happiness.

INDIA URGES ACCEPTANCE OF AGREEMENT

New Delhi, Nov. 7. A resolution urging the acceptance of the Ottawa agreement was moved to-day by Sir Joseph Bhoré, who declared that without the preference secured at Ottawa, the tea industry might have met with irretrievable disaster. He said that 65 per cent. of Indian imports should still be outside the preferences granted Britain, while in return, India received valuable help in opening out great possibilities in the expansion of articles like vegetable oils, seeds and rice. Moreover the preferences exchanged between India and the Colonial Empire held out a promise of considerable development for India's manufactures such as cotton piece goods, yarn, iron and steel.

Sir Joseph Bhoré claimed that nothing could be fairer than a provision allowing India to terminate the agreement at six months' notice.—Reuter.

CALL of the WEST

By R. G. MONTGOMERY

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

Stan Ball, an agent for cattle, interviews face Asper Delo in his office. Ball accuses Delo of having men shot who are sent out to check his stamper activities at Three Rivers. Ball says he is making a personal check. Delo says he will personally see that Ball does not make a check. Asper Delo, a man from kidnapers, she proves to be Delo's daughter, Dona. When Ball learns her name he tells her he is Stanley Black and slips away.

Dudley Winters, in love with Dona, agrees to go to Three Rivers and get Delo to come back. Dona goes with him and at their first stop Dudley produces a marriage licence and urges Dona to marry him, arguing that Delo will not go on a manhunt if they do. Dona barely misses the marriage by meeting Ball on his way to Three Rivers.

At the camp, Swergin, Asper's timber boss, tries to make Dona stay in camp. She slips away from men he has ordered to watch her and ride. She sees her father attacked and shot. Swergin comes to her rescue. Dudley and Swergin both warn her not to ride alone as Ball will attack her as he has her father. Dona goes out again when she starts back. She is followed. Her pursuer proves to be Swergin, who takes her back to camp in spite of the fact that she has been hit across the face. Asper is much worse. The storekeeper is knocked out and his place robbed. Ball is blamed. Swergin refuses to keep Dona in the sick room. Asper is in a rage.

CHAPTER XVI.

Stanley Ball thought he understood how a hunted animal must feel. His shelter was a cave high under the rim of Folly Peak where none but the warriest veteran could find him. The trail to this den led through a slash in a great rock wall and was hidden by sprinkled alders and black birch.

There was a little open shelf for his mare and the cave was fairly comfortable. By using tinder dry and resinous wood he was able to have a fire over which to cook the simple fare on which he lived. He was sitting before a bed of glowing coals, taking stock of the situation in which he found himself.

Ball admitted, as he stared into the embers, that if he had known one-tenth what he now knew he would never have come to Three Rivers to get the low-down on the Delo Timber interests. He was forced to admit that he was in love with Dona Delo, hopelessly in love with her, and that he could not have her.

Love for Dona had made him remain on Folly Mountain until he had been branded a desperate criminal and a murderer. Now even though Dona had not married the young man he saw riding in the lower country every day, he would still be unable to offer his soiled name to her. Ball kicked dirt over. He'll let that dirty gun-tower shoot the fire and arson. One thing was up the whole camp. I'm going sure; he had to have more supplies. Carrying his food on a horse without cutting the animal's speed be no match for a healthy man made it necessary for him to forage often. Then, too, there was the trouble encountered in getting the supplies. He had to steal them.

All the way down the mountain he studied these bitter problems. He was half-decided to turn himself in and take the consequences, which he knew would be a first-class lynching.

The moon was not yet over the rim of Folly Mountain and Ball could move at a fair pace through the blue gloom. His black mare was invisible as ink and as silent as a panther. He rode to the edge of the clearing above the camp and dismounted. Tying the mare in a thicket, he moved swiftly toward the lights of the buildings.

First the commissioner was paid a swift visit. Stan had worked a board loose from a back window to gain ready entrance. Within 15 minutes he had secured what he needed while Old Sims sat in the front of the store nursing his bandaged head. Stan smiled to himself grimly as he took a last look at the bandaged figure up in front.

Caching the food, Stan moved along the dark side of the main building. He was looking for a particular room, drawn by a force that he could not resist. He knew the room, but found it dark. Further along the wall were two lighted windows. Stan edged to ward them. The nearest window was open and he was able, by frowning himself against the light, to look inside.

The scene within the room was a tense one. Dudley was standing with Dona Delo, hopelessly in love with her, and that he could not have her. Love for Dona had made him remain on Folly Mountain until he had been branded a desperate criminal and a murderer. Now even though Dona had not married the young man he saw riding in the lower country every day, he would confounded Swergin. He's lettin'

Ball make fools out of all of us. He'll let that dirty gun-tower shoot the fire and arson. One thing was up the whole camp. I'm going sure; he had to have more supplies. Carrying his food on a horse without cutting the animal's speed be no match for a healthy man made it necessary for him to forage often. Then, too, there was the trouble encountered in getting the supplies. He had to steal them.

"I'm sick and tired of being coddled because of a little puncture in the shoulder. I've packed more lead without even lying down than that skunk over saw!" Asper roared.

Dona leaped to her feet. She reached into her dress and pulled out a stiff paper. "Dad, please listen to me."

With a rumble Asper settled back against the pillows. His lips were white and he was shaking. "Dad, Dudley and I have been saving a secret for you. We are married." The words slipped from her lips almost tongueless.

Dudley aroused himself with a jerk and came forward. He seemed unable to speak. Asper took the paper without a word and unfolded it. He stared at it for a full minute before he spoke.

"Sam Dean married you," he said slowly. His anger seemed to have melted and his hand was shaking. "Why, this has been a pretty poor honeymoon!"

"Now you see why I wanted you to give all this up and come back with us?" Dona's eyes were clouded with tears.

Asper's gaze rose to Dudley's face. Dudley blushed and stammered. "I sort of overlooked asking for the bride."

Stan Ball tried to pull himself away from the window but he could not. He was fascinated by the stary, tear-drenched eyes of the girl he loved. He felt an urge to leap through the window and shake Dudley Winters savagely. Why didn't the fool comfort her? Why didn't he take her in his arms and kiss those tears away? Asper Delo's deep voice broke in on his thoughts.

"I guess I'm an old fool but Swergin's blundering made me see red. Of course your happiness is all that really counts with me. Now what do you want to do?"

"We want you to stay in bed for a couple more days and then go back with us and help us get a home fixed up," Dona's soft alto was tremulous.

MOONLIGHT, a picturesque mountain camp, a pretty girl and a dashing cowboy. With such romantic elements of course there's a love story in "Call of the West" by R. G. Montgomery. There's adventure and excitement too in this thrilling new serial.

"Sure, that's just what we want," Dudley seemed suddenly to have come to his senses.

Stan Ball pulled back from the window. Dona had been keeping from under the blinds but he the marriage from her father. One could hear a voice inside but he did not wish to eavesdrop. He had reached the corner of the building and was about to turn and retrace his steps to the place where he had left the cache of food when he felt a hard, finger-like object jab him in the back. Asper's voice commanded, "Put 'em up, Ball, and keep 'em up!"

Twisting his head as he raised his arms Stan could make out the bulky figure of Swergin behind him. In the dim light he could see a fiendish grin on the thick lips of the timber boss.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

thing else, even if it disagrees with you. What business is it of the waiter's anyway?

As you will now have a minute or so to wait, you can occupy it by sending for the manager and complaining of the delay. If he doesn't have you thrown out, use the wrong knife and fork for the fish and show your independence. It is good that also to turn round suddenly as the waiter is pouring the wine, and jog his elbow.

Finally, give the wretch twice the tip you ought to. It humiliates him to think that he is in an inferior position even to a worm like you, and dependent on your charity, and he will be furious.

Such Is Fame.

One of the disadvantages of being a famous man is that you are overhauled by being asked to open bazaars, lay foundation stones, and what not. True, up till now I am only asked to open tin of sardines, and to lay the line, but I must be getting on. The Associated Errand Boys of our suburb have asked me to be president of their football club this season.

I have already bought a new hat, one size larger, since I have seen, in imagination, my name on the fixture list, with a real "Eag." after it.

I enclosed a guinea to the secretary with a letter of thanks which ran to eight pages, dwelling on my love of the sport, but I don't think I shall send the letter. The lad who collects my empties is a member, and I foolishly asked him why they selected me for the honour. He practically gave me the minutes of the meeting.

It seems that old Bangstar, our local M.P., said he'd be hanged if he'd cough up more than five bob this year for any more of "these dashed impositions, and the club needed new goalposts. So the secretary said they'd have to find a real mug this time, and after some discussion they decided that I was it.

Well, they'll get their guinea, if the bank cashes the cheque, and I'm going to get my money's worth by sending a full report of my benevolence—in the third person, complete with the "Eag."—to the local paper. It will amuse George, anyway.

Just a Bite With Us.

It happened that while we were on holiday this year I had to come back home in the car to see to some very important business, which, like all other very important business, might have been postponed indefinitely, and before I started I wrote to three of our neighbours to say that I would call on them for a minute or two just to say how-do-you-do.

I failed to do my business, as a matter of fact, because the man I wanted to see had gone off on his holidays, so about 11.45 I took in to our empty house a snack consisting of a mere couple of pounds of steak, which I grilled, and ate with some bread and a large piece of cheese which I found we had left behind.

I then called on Mrs. George to inquire concerning the health of our cat, which she was boarding for us. The animal greeted me coldly, as though he seemed to remember seeing me in some place some time or other, but Mrs. George insisted that I should stay to lunch. I explained that I had had some already, but she said, "Oh, I know you men and your idea of lunch. This is a real lunch. It's Irish stew."

I admit to a fondness for Irish stew, especially when it contains the potatoes I had previously missed, so I agreed to toy with a spoonful. The steak settled down and made a good foundation for it.

After solemnly promising Mrs. George and the cat that I would send them some Brighton's rock, I walked into my neighbour's on the other side. To my dismay they had also prepared me some lunch. They did not believe I had already had some of my own, and I dared not mention Mrs. George or they would have been jealous. You know what neighbours are. I was led into the presence of a noble sirion, which they had been keeping hot.

As a rule I am fond of sirion. In order not to hurt their feelings I did my best, although I feel that I should have liked my host's carving better if he hadn't produced slices an inch thick. Eventually I staggered out and drew a deep breath, which gave me strength enough to pop in across the road.

They were glad to see me. As I had feared, they had waited lunch for me, and it consisted of some large, fat pork chops, complete with kidneys, which they said would sustain me on my journey back.

I got back to the seaside all right, excepting that an A.A. scout stopped me and said that the car seemed to be badly tilted towards the driver's seat.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

FASHION NOTES.

The Newest Coiffures.

There are all kinds of curious coiffures to be seen this season. They may be intricate and tortuous, or plain and simple, with perhaps only a semi-circle of upright curls surrounding the head like a diadem.

A wind-blown effect on one side of the forehead with curls on the other and flat curls arranged in two regular rolls on one side of the head, make one elaborate coiffure while a neat little chignon for the women who are letting their hair grow again adorns the nape of the neck of another.

There is no untidiness about these new coiffures. People have not used to clean, and sculptured lines, and it is essential that hair-dressing today shall be flat and severe.

A transparent lacquer is being used by some women. Sometimes the lacquer is in the same colour as the wearer's natural hair, though very often other shades are chosen, and, for evening wear, the hair may be lacquered in dull silver or gold.

Materials this season are less elaborate, there are few heavy satins, no rich laces, or velvets. The material most in vogue is cotton. Cotton is so disguised as to look like anything but what it is, or it may resemble cotton and get away with it beautifully.

The new line is diagonal, and the new trimming is a race between dots and stripes. A white pique evening dress, worn by one of the Paris leaders of fashion made quite a sensation the other evening. It flared like an anemone; the shoulder straps were almost invisible; in fact, it was divinely lovely.

By Joan Savoy

If you want to be daring, and more than a little sophisticated, all you need to do is wear this velvet costume which has allure written in every flowing line.

Black and white have a habit of announcing that they know just a little more about everything than any other colours, and this ensemble goes beyond the usual goal.

The dolman sleeves which make a portion of the back, leaving the rest uncovered, are enticing features.

Svelte hips and a long, slightly circular skirt complete the gown beneath, which is bodiced in white crepe. A high and low neck are achieved in front and back by the closeness of the jacket's collar and the deep V of the dress. The hat and shoes are of velvet.

DIAGONAL LINES.

Give Charming Appearance.

This season's models show that dressmakers appreciate the charm of diagonal lines. Though present fashions look simple to the casual observer, they involve endless thought on the part of designers and cutters. The continual lack of trimming and studied simplicity means that the charm of a dress depends on cut.

A successful exponent of this line showed a pale apple-green afternoon dress to meet with success. It was made with elbow-length sleeves and a narrow train at the bottom of the hem. The rectangular neckline cut lower at the left side was gathered in a small bow. Plain in appearance, the whole dress was composed of diagonally cut sections which lent a gentle flaring movement of the skirt.

A black tulle dress, has a pillar-box red crepe jacket and sash in the same colour tied in a huge bow at one side. Huge sleeves of the falloon order and side sash fullness are among the newest notes.

A HANDBAG CLASP

A tiny jade elephant makes a charming clasp for an afternoon bag, and the small ring with which to open the bag is also of jade and maroon. This mount is placed in a bag of old Persian brocade, and, with its pastel colourings, is suitable with almost any coloured frock.

STALEMATE AGAIN.

Amongst the many other facts which emerge from the German elections is fresh proof that the people have no use for the von Papen regime. This has been shown in unmistakable fashion. We thus have a position created in which the Government of the day cannot by any possible circumstance secure a majority in the Reichstag. Even calling all its possible allies together, it would still be in an altogether helpless minority. But if this is true of the von Papen administration, it is so in a lesser degree in the case of all the other parties. After the July election, there was a distinct possibility of the Nazis and Centrists forming a coalition. If they had done so, they could have commanded a small majority in the Reichstag; now, owing to the set-back which Hitler has received, such a combination is an impossibility. Nor can the Communists and Socialists unite, for, despite the fact that they polled some thirteen million votes, their combined party strength is totally insufficient to secure a majority. The stalemate which has resulted presents Germany with a problem of much complexity. Indeed, it is not too much to say that the country's democratic, parliamentary, republican post-war Constitution is in the balance. How will the puzzle be solved? The von Papen regime may seek to rely once again on pure dictatorship, arguing that constant appeals to the people produce no definite result. But the logical answer to this argument is that von Papen and his colleagues have less right than almost any other group to control the destinies of the nation. Hitler, for example, might well ask, if there is to be a dictatorship, why he should not be at its head, seeing that his party is the strongest. Or even the Socialists and Communists could lay claim to being more representative of public feeling than the von Papen clique. It is, however, to President Hindenburg that we shall have to turn to see how the situation is to be straightened out. It was recently said of the aged President that he alone could claim to have a majority of the electors behind him, but against that submission we have the fact, demonstrated at the latest election, that the people do not approve of the technique of government which he has brought into being by creating the von Papen regime. Hindenburg's idea seems to have been to manage Parliament through selected Ministers who should mould rather than interpret its will. But to attempt to govern a desperate nation amid economic chaos, without a party and against an overwhelming majority, seems like attempting the impossible. Moreover, as we have remarked, the popular vote has clearly shown that it has no liking for the von Papen concept of government.

There can be no doubt that the von Papen Ministry would wish to carry on the nation's affairs on a basis which is in direct conflict with democratic principles. Even quite recently a scheme was outlined for the creation of a kind of Second Chamber which would "control exaggerated Parliamentarianism"—a phrase which possibly means any Parliamentarianism which did not fall in with the dictator's ideas. A further plan put forward was the disenfranchisement of a large number of young people by raising the voters' age-limit from twenty to twenty-five years. This is part of a scheme which was forecasted some little time back, and which the von Papen Government was said to intend to realise by decree, trusting to the retrospective approval of a new Reichstag. It was even hinted that under this plan every father and mother over forty would enjoy a plural vote. Such a fantastic franchise, it hardly needs to be pointed out, would decimate the voting ranks of the Nazis, Communists and Socialists alike. But it would surely be a foolish experiment, helping to confirm youth in its idea that in revolution lies its hope. The crisis which has now arisen is, indeed, full of dangerous possibilities. It will need the most careful and most statesmanlike handling. Let us hope that the traditional common-sense and balance of the German people will, by some means not apparent at the moment, come to the rescue of their distressed and troubled country.

A Fable of Walls

Once upon a time there was an artisan. Many and beautiful were his wares. And great was the desire of all peoples for them, so that men came from far and near to buy. At first they paid in gold. But after a while many of them had not sufficient gold. Therefore, they said to the artisan: "Take the work of our hands, we pray thee, in exchange for the work of thy hand." The artisan was loath to do this. Yet he saw that he could not refuse so reasonable a request. So he said: "I shall build a wall. Whatsoever goods can be lifted over the wall, those will I accept in payment for my wares." Then began the artisan to build. And he said in his heart: "I shall build high, so high that they who come to buy will be able to send nothing but coins over my wall in payment for my goods." When the wall was finished the artisan cried: "Come and buy." But those who would buy could not lift their goods over the wall. So the artisan said: "Send, then, less gold than formerly." But they replied: "We have no gold." Then said the artisan in his heart: "I have much gold. I will enjoy my riches." And he said to the others: "Come and let us talk and be merry together." But they said: "We cannot. We must seek someone who will buy our goods." So the artisan was left to his own riches and his own thoughts. And his goods being more than he could consume, rotted. And his thoughts, being only his own, grew tiresome. Then he said in his heart: "I shall pull down the wall. I shall buy with my gold. And when I have goods I will exchange goods for goods, services for services. For a man cannot live unto himself." To-day this fable is being enacted by the nations. Many are still building their tariff walls. Many are viewing with declining satisfaction the high barriers to commercial intercourse which they already have built. Some have begun to realize that such "protection" tends not merely toward commercial stagnation, but toward intellectual isolation and international bitterness. They are learning that national well-being obtained behind walls may prove to be of a most transitory nature. In a world where invention is offering unlimited possibilities of communication, and in which, as a result, peoples are learning how much they have in common, it is not too much to predict that even the most prosperous countries will soon be saying in their hearts: "A nation cannot live unto itself."

WHAT DO YOU OWE TO YOUR PARENTS?

By T. S. DENHAM

THE brilliant young man who has exceedingly dull parents and the beautiful young girl whose mother and father are far from good looking are known to all of us. Yet the young man owes his brilliance to his parents, just as the beautiful girl owes her looks to her mother and father. This question of inheritance is still something of a mystery, but, from a very tangled skein, scientists are beginning to sort out one or two threads, and they are giving us a fascinating story in the process.

Men have always realised that there is such a thing as heredity. The earliest records show that men never imagined a newly-born creature was a separate creation, only accidentally like its parents. But as soon as men began trying to explain or to foresee what a child would inherit they became involved in a maze of apparent contradictions. The brilliant musician produces a child that is deaf to the beauty of sounds; the frail wife has a huge son of immense strength. Inheritance seems to be one of the most erratic things in an erratic world.

A child may seem to owe everything to one parent or to the other, or it may seem to owe a little to both, or it may bear no resemblance to either. Again, it may have some quality or feature that belonged to its grandparents and was not to all appearances—present in its parents. On the other hand, some pronounced family feature, like the famous Hapsburg chin, may appear generation after generation, in spite of continual out-marriages.

But heredity is not a matter of chance. It is certain that there are laws governing inheritance even of the most complicated kind, although these laws are as yet a sealed book. Marvellous things have been discovered in experiments with the lower animals and plants, when many generations can be produced in a few years. Observation of human attributes points to the fact that, although vastly more complicated in many cases, inheritance is still on the same lines and follows the same laws.

What exactly do we owe our parents? We can inherit what is inherent in our parents—what they were born with, and in turn inherited from their parents. The stress is on the word "can," because often we do not, sometimes to our loss, and sometimes to our gain. But do we inherit qualities which our parents have acquired during their lifetime, as distinct from those which they inherited from their parents? Most experts believe that these "acquired qualities" cannot be passed on by heredity. If a man is maimed in an accident, he does not pass on these defects to his children. On the other hand, some believe that certain acquired qualities can be made hereditary, at any rate after a few generations. If, for instance, a number of people worked underground, after some years they would find it easier to see in semi-darkness, and it has been contended that after a few generations children would be born with an aptitude for seeing in the semi-darkness.

On the other hand, mice have had their tails removed for many generations, and the youngsters of the last generation have been born with tails as perfect as those of the original ancestors. It is a point on which many famous biologists are working, but the general expectation is that they will prove negative.

There is another interesting class of inheritable qualities—those that you owe to your mother, but which she does not know. A mother passes these qualities to her sons, and in this way they may skip a generation—an awkward and misleading thing, since these qualities are disadvantageous. They include colour-blindness, inability to see in a faint light, and that distressing complaint haemophilia, the sufferer from which is liable to bleed to death from a minute cut, because the blood will not clot. It would not ordinarily occur to anyone that a perfectly normal woman could pass these defects to her sons. But we know that the daughter of an afflicted man can and does pass them on to her children.

One particular inheritance, a wobbling of the toes, has been found to pass only in the male line, from father to son. Here, in my event, we cannot blame the woman!

Many people are prejudiced against the study of heredity because, they complain, it deals with abnormalities. We try to find out whether colour-blindness is transmissible, and do not worry about a gift for painting. This is merely because doctors and scientists have more chance of studying abnormal persons, just as they are more concerned with sickness than health. Good qualities are just as inheritable as bad ones.

Whatever you may owe to your parents, and whatever you may pass on to your children, it is certain that you cannot alter the inheritance by "taking thought." Wishing and regretting will have no effect whatever. But you have one big responsibility. Forewarned is fore-armed. In spite of heredity, we are reasoning beings, cases, inheritance is still on the same lines and follows the same laws. We may have inherited a bad quality and may pass it on to my son. But I know the existence of the tendency to, shall we say bad temper, and I can take steps from the earliest days to see that he learns to control himself. I cannot prevent him inheriting the temper—but I can show him how to avoid the disadvantages that often accompany it. It is the same with colour-blindness. If the tendency is there, then a visit to a specialist, and the banning of certain occupations such as artist, engine-driver, and chauffeur, are indicated.

We cannot ignore what we owe our parents. But we need not be slaves to our inheritance. Your parents may leave you a few pounds—but you can build up a fortune. In the physical and mental sense, and your children will benefit.

By ROBERT MACILL.

If you are a downtrodden worm like me, who dines out once in twelve months, you usually hate the waiter for several reasons. One is that his dress suits him better than yours, and another is that a waiter can take one look at you and conclude that you have been saving up for months to get this treat, and that to-morrow it will be bread and cheese and cocoa, as usual. Wherefore you might like to know how to make the waiter hate you back.

First, don't let him select your table. True, it is his job to sort out the guests so that the better-looking ones sit in the middle where they can be seen, and to see that no woman sits near another if their gowns clash. But this is a free country. Demand, in a loud voice, that table THERE, preferably if it is a table for two, and there are four in your party. This makes all the waiters in the place jump to it and upsets all their arrangements for the evening.

Having sat down, look round superciliously and remark audibly that you hope nobody who knows you will come in and see you in a place like this, then send for the head waiter to ask why you have a dirty tablecloth. You won't see much more of him during the evening, so make the most of him now.

By a judicious glance in the mirror you can work up a suitable sneer with which to scan the menu and inquire why there is nothing eatable on it. If the waiter suggests a dish, order some—

CAPITALISM AND

FUTURE HOPES

"Capitalism and the Russian Plan" was the subject chosen by Professor R. Robertson for his Presidential address before the Law and Commerce Society of the Hongkong University last night.

In opening, Professor Robertson said:—I have chosen this subject for certain reasons which seem to me to have some weight. There is a great deal of loose talk about the failure of the prevailing economic system, much of it uninformed, arising from an instinctive but unreasoned disgust at the spectacle of want amid plenty, as the saying goes. At the same time there is much confused and undigested information regarding Russia, leading to an incomplete appraisal of the Soviet experiment. The two trends of thought are, however, intermingled, repulsion due to the seeming dislocation or disorderliness of private capitalism finding its complement in the attraction exercised by a system which is planned or coordinated.

CAPITALIST CHAOS.

During the last year or two the eyes of many have been turned towards Russia who formerly would have been either hostile to the trend of events there or indifferent. Those who were already convinced of the inevitability of Marxian Socialism have during that period found their armoury of argument enlarged, and their hopes quickened. But it is not of them that I thought when I chose this topic.

It was rather of those who are not specially attracted to the dogmas of Marxianism, who are indeed repelled by them; but who, appalled by the chaos they see in the capitalist countries, disturbed by the apparent hopelessness of discovering a remedy among existing economic agencies, bewildered by the varying prescriptions of publicists, and half-convinced that even the right prescription, if it could not be applied without some far-reaching change in the whole apparatus of production and distribution, are asking themselves whether there is not something in this planning business after all, and whether, even if it does involve the scrapping of our present notions of incentive and reward, it would not be better than a system in which, for long periods and, who knows, perhaps permanently, rewards and therefore incentives are absent entirely.

Then there is this other point, that these people are really not sure whether the planning that they hear and read of in Russia is inextricably linked up with the abolition of private property, and with the "dictatorship of the proletariat." Perhaps after all we might be able to take a leaf out of their book, to emulate these Bolsheviks in the constructive planning of economic activity, to excel them indeed, without going the whole hog, so to speak, and swallowing entire the principle and practice of communism or Marxism or Leninism or whatever they call it.

THE WAR DEBTS.

After outlining some features of the Soviet system of Marxian Socialism, the speaker continued:—There are two spheres in which measures are called for, in my opinion, the international and the national. I have already suggested that it is in the international sphere that our present disorders are to be found. Here much that is urgent calls for action. In the first place, the dislocation caused by the burden of inter-governmental payments arising out of the war debts settlements must be got rid of. These payments, which on their present basis, project far into the future, are, it is to be remembered, not the normal type of international indebtedness. They represent interest and sinking fund on loans which were not devoted to the development of production in any direct sense, and are therefore sheer burdens upon the industry of those who pay them. They thus enter into the balances of international payments as a disturbing factor.

ECONOMIC NATIONALISM.

Next, there is the excessive economic nationalism which has prevailed in post-war years. This policy represents a departure from the policy which prevailed before the war. There seems to be no adequate reason why such a policy should continue with the degree of intensity which it has assumed. It is linked up, no doubt, with a feature of modern industry which cannot wholly be attributed to the war, although encouraged by it, namely, the development of large-scale production which makes

CEREMONYCHINESE MEMORIAL
ARCH PLANS

The following is an outline of the ceremony which is to take place at the Chinese Memorial Arch on Armistice Day at 11.45 a.m.:

His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government with His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, the O.C., Troops, Hongkong Area, and the Senior Royal Air Force Officer will be met at the foot of the Botanic Garden steps by the Chinese Members of Council, who will escort them up the steps to the Memorial.

"Last Post" will be sounded by Military Buglers. Then there will be a short pause followed by "Reveille."

His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government will then lay a wreath followed by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, the O.C., Troops, Hongkong Area, and the Senior Royal Air Force Officer.

Chinese Members of Council will then lay a wreath followed by Chinese Representatives on the Sanitary Board, Senior Members of the District Watch Committee, Chairman of the Tung Wah Hospital, Chairman of the Po Leung Kuk, and the Chairman of the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce.

Then wreaths will be laid by others who desire to do so.

Other Members of the Executive and Legislative Councils have also been invited to take their places beside the Memorial Arch.

"Last Post" and "Reveille" will be blown by buglers of the South Wales Borderers, and a body of Chinese from the Chinese portion of the 10th Company Royal Engineers will parade under a British Officer.

The steps leading up to the Memorial Arch will be lined by special Police Reserves, and a detachment of District Watchmen will parade under Inspector Shafstall.

GOLF AT FANLING.

British Navy Boat Team
From U.S. Warships

The officers with the American Navy who are on a visit to the Colony with the U.S. fleet were again the guests of their British hosts yesterday, when they were entertained to a series of golf matches which were played at Fanling on the course of the Royal Hongkong Golf Club.

The British Naval officers, consisting of Capt. R. L. Burnett, Com. P. Todd, Lieut. G. M. Fuller, Lieut. H. P. Watson, Lieut. S. H. Norris, Sub. Lieut. W. A. Batten, Surgeon Lieut. Com. M. Sloane and Lieut. C. A. de W. Kitcat, won the singles, which were played in the afternoon, by six matches to two, to give them the decision, the foursomes having been shared with two matches each.

Lieut. Fuller and Watson and Lieut. Norris and Sub. Lieut. Batten were the successful pairs in the foursomes.

economies possible, but which makes it necessary to have assured markets for the product. The easiest way of obtaining such markets, especially when so many countries that were formerly producers of foodstuffs and raw materials have taken to manufacturing, is to protect the home producer in the home market by a tariff wall.

Then we have the spectacle of each country vying with others in building tariff walls higher and higher, when the interests of all would be much better served by a return to the system of interchange of goods produced where most effective production is possible. Any international economic conference which omits this item from its agenda is unlikely to result in any effective amelioration of the world position.

FUTURE HOPES.

Concluding his address, Professor Robertson said:—We need not believe that the present depression spells the end and collapse of the capitalist system. Given adequate statesmanship, especially in the international sphere, so that the exceptional disturbing factors of the post-war era may be removed or diminished in their effect, there is no reason why the process of recovery should not evidence itself in the usual manner, through the diminution of stocks and the consequent commencement of a rise in prices, communicating itself throughout industry as a whole. Monetary measures taken now may help to assist such a recovery, so far as the monetary and credit system have been out of their proper relationship to productivity. And measures may be devised not perhaps completely to eliminate the unstable rhythm of industrial activity but greatly to modify it. And if this can be done, those who are now looking with envy towards the apparent order (at however a low level of welfare) in Russia, may then welcome the hope that in the future as in a not distant past, rising standards of material welfare may be compatible with liberty.

been too busy defending themselves against criticisms.

Mr. Roosevelt, meanwhile, has saved himself for a final battle in the East. Thanks to the conservatism of that section and the antagonism of many of Al Smith's admirers—even though that hostility may have been lessened by the recent public reunion of the two leaders at Albany—he faces a situation which may yet defeat him through the loss of New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey.

It is, however, no longer argued that a Democratic candidate cannot be elected without carrying New York's 46 electoral votes, but Mr. Roosevelt's failure to carry his home State might, in certain circumstances make his task a lot harder. New York is now regarded as doubtful. If they cannot win New York, the Democrats expect to offset that loss by taking Ohio, Illinois and Indiana, with a total of 69 electoral votes. They talk, not unreasonably, of carrying Illinois by 500,000 votes, Ohio by 200,000 or 300,000 and Indiana by 100,000.

47 VOTES MIGHT WIN.

Most prognosticators give Roosevelt a minimum of 150 certain electoral votes to start with—those of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. Add Illinois, Ohio and Indiana, and Roosevelt would have 219, needing only 47 more to win.

If there is anything to the almost unanimous reports of great Roosevelt strength in the West, he would have no trouble in picking up those 47. Among the States almost certain to go for him, are Nebraska with 7 electoral votes, Washington 8, Montana 4, Maryland 8, Oregon 5, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico with 3 each, Kentucky 11 and Minnesota 11.

He has a real chance in such normally Republican states as Kansas, Iowa, California, Idaho, North and South Dakota, Wisconsin, Colorado, Utah and Wyoming, with a combined electoral vote of 79. And as things stand, he is assured of breaking into several of them. The straw votes in Iowa and California, for instance, show him well ahead.

HOOVER NEEDS LUCK.

A glance at the electoral vote picture is sufficient to show why there is such a widespread belief that Mr. Roosevelt will win. It seems to most people that President Hoover will have to get just all the luck there is going if he is to upset the prophets.

Nothing more significant has appeared during the campaign than the figures in the Literary Digest's poll which show 40 per cent of Roosevelt's straw vote to be derived from persons who voted Republican in 1928, while only six per cent of Hoover's comes from 1928 Democrats. This represents the most concrete evidence of the widespread disposition among voters to blame Hoover for the depression or for his methods of combating it.

BACK TO THE LAND

no return of prosperity to any European state.

He was convinced that the land must play a greater part than it had hitherto done in schemes for assisting the unemployment problem.

EXPERT ADVISERS.

The Government were now devising ways to assist agriculture, but that industry must prove that it was using the tariffs to advance its efficiency in marketing and in other directions.

The Government was also in contact with expert advisers as to how to promote and how effect could be given to such schemes as hydro-generation, housing and slum clearance.

Mr. Arthur Greenwood, Labour, who followed, declared that what was required for the restoration of the basic industries was essential.

Mr. Lloyd George strongly advocated the development of the small holding which employed a large amount of labour and provided training for later agricultural employment. At least a million workers should be placed actually on the soil or in ancillary occupations.

MEAT PRICES.

Replying to the debate, Major Walter Elliott announced that River Plate Importers had agreed to a cut of twenty per cent. in supplies of mutton and lamb, and of ten per cent. in supplies of chilled beef for a few weeks and twenty per cent. if prices did not improve.

SWEEP DISPUTE
TO SHARE

Through the mediation of Mr. M. K. Lo, legal adviser of the South China Athletic Association, the disputants and drawers of the first four points in the Autumn Champions' cash sweep, organised by the S.C.A.A., have now come to terms in their division of the stake money amounting to over $158,000.

Although, in accordance with the Jockey Club regulations, dividends on the pari-mutuel at Happy Valley were paid to the supporters of Champagne Bay, the drawer of Wonderful Stag, the pony which came in second, a woman named Lum King Yuk, wrote to the S.C.A.A. General Committee protesting about the provision of the first prize money, amounting to $100,000 to the drawer of Champagne Bay, on the ground that it was suspended after the race. Then followed fruitless efforts by the S.C.A.A. Committee members to bring the disputants to a settlement and the assistance of Mr. M. K. Lo, was asked. It is understood that at one time both disputing parties engaged counsel in readiness to fight out the issue in the Court of Justice.

The mediation of Mr. Lo and the General Committee however eventually succeeded in arranging a general settlement, resulting in Mr. Li Chung, drawer of Champagne Bay, getting $55,000, Lum King-yuk, $70,000, Messrs. Ip Fung-sang and Lau Hing-cheung, joint owners of the ticket drawing Ajax, the third pony, $21,500 between them, and Messrs. Tan Eng-hooi and So Pui-chen, joint owners of the ticket drawing Indiana, the third pony, $10,500 between them.

CARGO BOAT'S
ADVENTUREENCOUNTERS HEAVY WEATHER

Heavy seas were encountered by a cargo boat which left Hongkong on Sunday with a consignment of sugar, salt and matches for Tak Mun Island. Beyond having to dislodge part of the cargo however, the boat was not damaged and returned to the Colony yesterday to make a report of the experience of the crew.

The report was made by Tse Lun, aged 30, the owner of a Class 4 cargo boat of 148 piculs capacity. He stated that at daybreak on Sunday he left Hongkong for Tak Mun Island with a cargo of 41 sacks of sugar, six sacks of salt and a quantity of matches. When near Tam Kung Tau that evening, the boat was endangered owing to the strong wind and heavy seas.

The crew immediately set about cutting away the main mast and sails, also threw part of the cargo overboard to lighten the craft. As a result, the storm was successfully ridden out.

Major Elliott expressed the opinion that there would be a reduction of shipments of mutton and lamb by ten per cent. in the next two months, which would create an entirely new situation for British livestock.—Reuter and British Wireless.

SHANGHAI'S SOCCER TRIAL

ONLY FAIR FORM DISPLAYED

PRACTICE BADLY REQUIRED

Shanghai's first trial in preparation for the forthcoming Interport football contest with Hongkong indicated that although the northerners were in the position to place a strong combination in the field, much practice was needed before the team reached the peak of its form.

The trial match staged at the Canidrome drew a crowd of 15,000 who saw Y. Y. Chow's side defeat S. V. Gash's eleven by five goals to two.

NEED PRACTICE.

Due to the fact that the players got together for the first time, though some had been playing in the same team there was some lack of combination. Individually, however, most players showed up well. Undoubtedly, when the actual eleven is selected, a lot of practice will be devoted in order to put on the finishing touches. Among the two sets of forwards, Lawton of East Lanes proved to be an able leader and sharp shooter. Given better understanding between the men on his sides, he should cause plenty of trouble for opposing defences. K. C. Chen, the inside right, displayed clever footwork but, unfortunately, he has not yet developed the vital quality of a forward in hard drives within scoring ranges. He is more suited to play in the intermediate line than in the attacking department.

H. K. Zung, the inside left, treated the spectators with fine headings, being productive of points which David, the goalie, found no means to save as the ball went into the corner of the net. Fawcett and Alderger, the wingmen, crossed over several beautiful centres and judging on the exhibition, they deserve to represent this city for the interport match unless some better wingers could be discovered to replace them. Chow's forwards showed a little better cohesion than Gash's quintette.

WESTWOOD GOOD.

Westwood played a fine game in the right of the half line, allowing Z. H. Van, a new player of the Tung Hwa Club, to run away on only a few occasions while Y. H. Zee, the centre-half, was good in intercepting the opponents' raids. Hurry was well in the fore in guarding his man.

Y. Y. Fung and N. Lee were dependable fullbacks, though Lee seemed to possess a hefty kick in clearing the half. Y. Y. Fung, captain of Hwa, and leading goalie of Shanghai, was given few opportunities to show his wares.

FINE DEFENCE.

For Gash's side, the defenders did some sterling work. David executed some lovely saves and the five points scored against him were really difficult shots for any goalie to stop. Marcal and Stokes were successful in warding off many attacks.

Gash put up some constructive play in feeding his men but he needed more training to come up to his old-time form. K. Y. Doo played like a Trojan, covering more field than any other half-back. Baker did not impress spectators much, and in the second half, he was replaced by Collet.

VAN A PASSENGER.

N. Z. Lee, the centre-forward, was rather slow on the ball. "Darky" Chen was evidently out of his usual position at inside left. "Darky" is a left winger and is also a reliable half-back. Recently he has been playing at centre-forward. Z. H. Van was a passenger during the greater part of the game while Keats and Burns on the right flank managed to break through on more occasions.

TWO GOALS SCORED.

In the 16th minute, Y. H. Zee swung a long pass to Alderger who slipped to Lawton. Stokes was beaten in the race with Lawton who dribbled up to put the ball in the corner of the net for the opening goal. About five minutes later Lawton again went through the defence to register the second point. At interval, the score was two to nil in favour of Chow's team.

Soon after resumption and after a fine piece of combination, H. K. Zung again headed through to bring the score to four to nil. Gash's forwards then bucked up immediately after the place kick and in a fine teamwork between Burns, Lee and Chen, the last named scored in the goal-mouth for Gash's side.

TO-DAY'S TRIAL.

What the selectors hope will prove to be the final trial before choosing the Hongkong Interport team is being held this afternoon at Caroline Hill, when the Association's representatives meet a Navy side.

Several changes have been made in the constitution of the Trial team to that of a week ago, new forwards having been brought in, including Wong Mee-shun, Sun Kam-shun and Johnson, the latter being leader of the Police attack.

But the forward line is not the only problem confronting the selectors and keen and anxious eyes will be scanning the team as a whole in order to discover where it can be strengthened. The Interport Trial eleven will line up as follows:

Rodgers, Martin and Strange, Bliss, Barber and Duncan, B. Gosnell, Wong Mee-shun, Johnson, Sun Kam-shun and Baldry.

POLICE LOSE FIRST MAMAK POINT

INTER-VARSITY SPORTS

LINGNAN EASILY WIN BASKETBALL

Hongkong the Tennis

Gaining an overwhelming victory in the basketball, a reverse in the men's tennis, but a further success in the ladies tennis, the Lingnan University who visited the Hongkong Varsity on Sunday carried off the honours of the day.

The exceptionally fine play of Szeto Hui of Lingnan who scored time after time for his team was the chief cause of the downfall of the local undergrads in the basketball match by 54 goals to 26. J.F. Chan and Y.K. Kwok were outstanding for Hongkong, but Canton enjoyed a marked superiority in team work.

Despite the very strong team put on to the courts by the visitors, the Hongkong Varsity succeeded in winning the tennis, H.N. Lee and N.Y. Ng winning their singles for the home team.

TENNIS SCORES

H.N. Lee (H.K.) beat Au Wang 3-6, 6-0, 6-0.
P. P. Kho (H.K.) lost to Chan Kai-ping 3-6, 4-6.

Y. K. Ng (H.K.) beat Joe Hui 6-4, 6-3.
Y. F. Chew and H.N. Lee (H.K.) lost to W.Y. Au and K.P. Chan 6-2, 4-6, 1-6.

D.J.N. Anderson and L.A. da Silva (H.K.) beat W.T. Ko and H.C. Lok 6-1, 1-6, 6-1.

THE LADIES.

Only the odd rubber separated the ladies teams, which ended in favour of Lingnan, the scores being:

A. Wood (H.K.) lost to F. Hotung 8-6, 9-11, 1-6.
R. Parry (H.K.) beat H. Chan 6-1, 6-0.

P.C. Kwok and W.F. Wwok (H.K.) lost to F. Hotung and H. Chan 4-6, 2-6.

WATER POLO.

In the Y.M.C.A. bath yesterday afternoon, the home team defeated H.M.S. Olympus at water-polo by eight goals to one. The naval team was completely out-manned, their goal being penetrated four times in the first half in reply to their one effort.

The second half again showed the "Y" men in the ascendancy. They dominated play almost throughout, and scored four more goals.

UNDER FIRE—Rodger, the brilliant Club custodian had to be on his best form to withstand the persistent onslaughts of the South China vanners on Saturday, but he came through with flying colours, with the Club registering the biggest surprise victory of the day. ### SIX GOALS SHARED WITH PHOENIX

PLAYER RETURNS AFTER HAVING HEAD STITCHED

The Police only just managed to preserve their unbeaten hockey league record when they met H.M.S. Phoenix in a Mamak Shield game yesterday, the teams sharing six goals.

At one stage during the second half the Police were 3-1 in arrears, but they rallied magnificently and obtained the equaliser a few minutes before the close.

The exchanges were very keen throughout and the teams crossed over with a goal each to their credit, but the sailors exerted unexpected pressure early in the second period and jumped into a lead which looked good enough to spoil the Police record.

The game swung completely round after this, and the home-sters literally bombarded the Phoenix goal resulting in a couple of quick points being secured.

Perkins, Harris and Kartar Singh were responsible for netting the Police tally, whilst Barnett (2) and Prior were the Phoenix marksmen.

RETURNS TO GAME FROM HOSPITAL.

A plucky piece of sportsmanship was displayed by Lance-Corporal Groves of the South Wales Borders yesterday, when, playing in an inter-platoon match, he sustained a severe cut on the head from a hockey stick. He received treatment at the French Hospital and then returned to resume his part in the game.

The match was between the 7th and 8th platoons of the Borders, resulting in a win for the 7th by two clear goals.

THE COLONY'S SPORTS SEARCHLIGHT

NEW FEATURES OF THE "TELEGRAPH"

PICTORIAL AND DESCRIPTIVE

Among the many features of the Hongkong Telegraph, with its well-known progressive policy, is its sports pages which offer to readers reports and exclusive comment on all sporting events of the Colony.

A SPECIAL REVIEW of all local week-end sports appears EVERY MONDAY, with exclusive descriptive reports and comments on leading football matches by "Veritas", "Wanderer" and other well-known writers.

The Telegraph SPORTS EDITION which appears EVERY FRIDAY is one of the brightest features in local journalism, offering comprehensive reviews of the week's sporting activities, with cricket, hockey, football, racing, rugby, etc., dealt with by special contributors.

The Telegraph feature of fixtures and teams for the week-end which appear EVERY FRIDAY is the only one its kind in local journalism.

In pictorial journalism the Telegraph has always led the way in Hongkong and it continues this policy in its sports pages where the FIRST PICTURES of local sporting events appear daily.

To-morrow a special report of criticism and comment by "Veritas" on the Interport Football Trial which takes place to-day will appear on PAGE 8 of the Telegraph.

INTER-CLUB TENNIS

Shameen's Return Match With K.C.C.

Arrangements have now been completed for the Shameen Tennis Club to return the visit made by the Kowloon Cricket Club a few weeks ago, and the Canton players will be entertained during the last week-end in this month, November 26 and 27.

On the Saturday evening a dance is being held in the K.C.C. clubhouse, and on Sunday the two teams meet in a tennis match. There will be an official tiffin and dinner before the Shameen players leave on Sunday night.

The tennis teams have yet to be selected.

VITAMIN B

Children—and adults too—require sufficient Vitamin B if they are to enjoy health and vitality. Modern diets are surprisingly low in this important essential to strength and vigor.

That unmistakable "GLOW" of Radiant Health

The strong, sturdy, vitally alive child is the result of a well-balanced diet that contains sufficient Vitamin B. When the diet does not supply enough of this vitamin, Squibb Chocolate-Vitavose will prove a new and extremely valuable diet supplement that increases appetite, aids digestion, adds weight and corrects intestinal sluggishness. It is a rich source of Vitamin B. Children and adults thrive on it and love its delicious and refreshing taste.

U.S. PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

MR. HOOVER FEELS CONFIDENT

New York, Nov. 7.

Mr. Hoover is stated to be more confident of victory than at any time during the past three months as a result of the enthusiastic crowds which have flocked to welcome him en route to California. A huge throng cheered his arrival at Denver. Mr. Hoover refused to discuss politics on his day of rest except to say that "All will be fed, if every citizen does his duty."

Mr. Hoover's campaign received a last minute fillip by a cautious speech by Senator Borah at Boise, Idaho. He said those who held that the present administration was responsible for the depression were unfitted to deal with a question which they must first learn to understand. After casting an absentee vote for an unknown candidate, Senator Borah entrained for Washington. He is still enigmatic about his real sympathies, but is determined to fight to the last ditch against the repeal of prohibition, which he said would mean "Hell on earth" for America.

LEAGUE CRITICISED.

MR. MATSUOKA GIVES VIEWS TO PRESSMAN

Shanghai, Nov. 7.

"If the League continues to maintain its past attitude, Japan will not hesitate to withdraw from it," Mr. Matsuoka is reported to have told a Japanese pressman at Moscow, adding that the most important factor in maintaining world peace and promoting international understanding "is that the Japanese Government should listen to the opinion of the League and the League should listen to Japan."

Mr. Matsuoka criticised America's attitude, which he said was based, firstly on the apprehension that establishment of the Manchukuo would impede trade with the Far East, and secondly the idea that creation of a new State was incompatible with international justice. He hoped the American people would reconsider the position.—Reuter.

CHARITY FUNCTION.

SATURDAY'S DINNER DANCE AT PENINSULA HOTEL

Every effort is being made to bring about a successful night at the Peninsula Hotel next Saturday, November 12, when as previously intimated, under the distinguished patronage of Mrs. W. T. Southern, and conjointly with the Peninsula Hotel management, the New Territories Medical Benevolent Society have arranged for a special dinner dance to take place in the attractive Rose Room and Roof Garden.

The object is a particular effort to raise funds for the promotion of the Society's medical activities in the New Territories. It is undoubtedly a deserving project and should meet with hearty support.

The function extends from 8.30 p.m. till 2 a.m. and no effort has been spared to make it interesting and enjoyable. A special entertainment is to follow the dinner, when at intervals several features will be presented.

Mrs. R. Ferrojolo, a charming vocalist, will render songs, Mrs. H. Mein, an accomplished and delightful exponent of classical dances will give displays of this attractive art, and the well-known and popular cabaret dancers "Hugo" and "Josephine" will provide exhibitions of ball-room artistic dance numbers.

Table reservations may be effected at both the Hongkong Hotel and Peninsula Hotel, and Dr. F. I. Tseng, Honorary Secretary and Treasurer of the Society, will take care of arrangements regarding bookings for Chinese patrons.

SWISS CHARGED

SAID TO HAVE ADMITTED "NECKING"

The prosecution yesterday closed its case against Henry Urmi, Swiss subject carrying on the business of a motor-engineer at Wanchai, who is charged with indecently assaulting Chung Wan, a 20-year-old girl. The hearing was resumed before Mr. Schofield.

Det. Inspector W. Shannon stated that on the night in question he received a report from Inspector Stimson, of Shauiwan, following which he took the girl in a Police car to Henry's Auto Service garages, at Nos. 447-457, Lockhart Road.

As they approached the garages, the girl pointed excitedly to a

COMING SHORTLY

"SUNSHINE SUSIE"

European and said, "That's he; that's he."

Urmi, who came forward at this moment, was then told of the charge against him. He denied it and said: "This is blackmail. I admit 'necking'."

Inspector Shannon: I asked him what he meant by "necking" and he said: "You know, making love."

Later witness brought Urmi to the Central Police Station and formally charged him there.

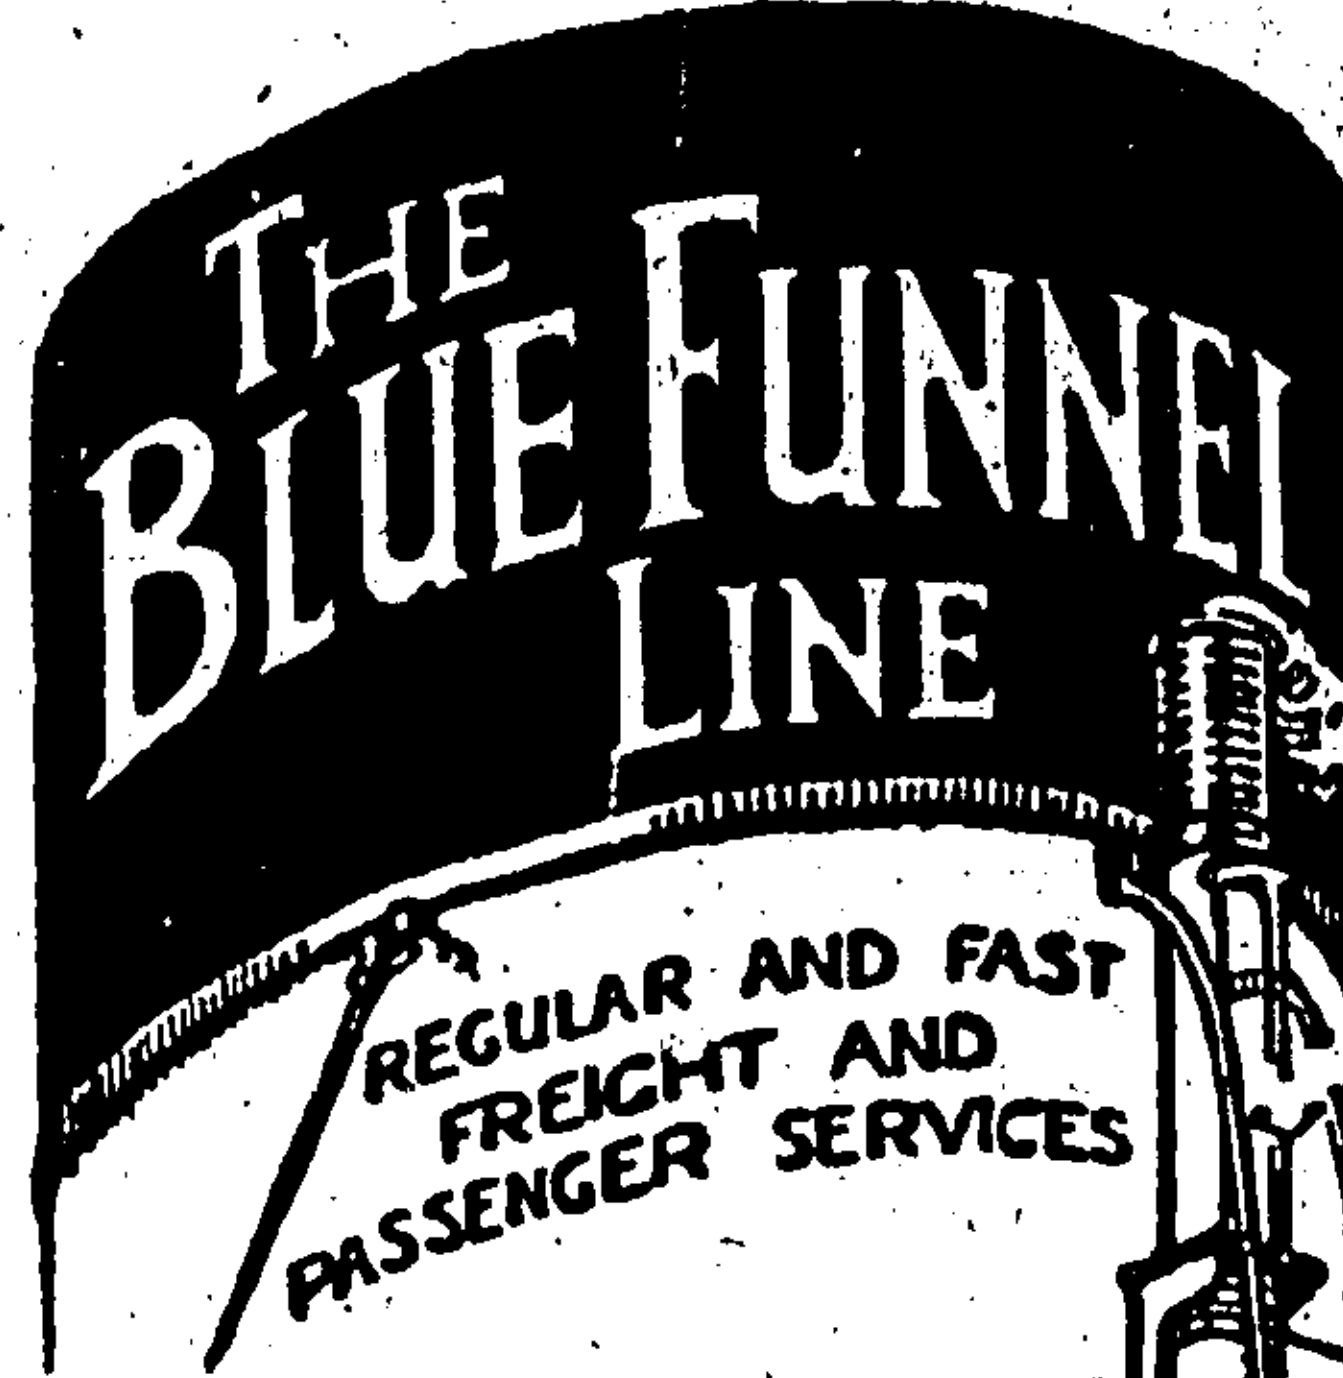

The following morning he examined the Austin car in which Urmi and the girl were said to have been, this for signs of a struggle, but found none, except for a few scratches on the dashboard which had recently been painted over.

The case for the prosecution was indicated as closed at this point, and Mr. Schofield then fixed tomorrow afternoon for the opening of the defence by Mr. W. A. Mackinlay, who is representing the accused.

HOTEL FUNCTIONS.

ENJOYABLE WEEK-END AT REPULSE BAY

The gala night at the Repulse Bay Hotel on Guy Pavko's Day, last Saturday, was the occasion for an enjoyable evening to the large number of diners participating in the special dinner dance festivity, which was carried on until 1 a.m.

An exceptional attraction was the clever performance of "The Joy Fun Toy Company," reputed China's foremost troupe of acrobats and jugglers. Excellent dance music was also afforded by the Hongkong Hotel's new dance orchestra "The Revellers" (which play every afternoon at the Hongkong Hotel's roof garden tea dances). Amongst those present at the gala night were:

Hon. Mr. C. C. Alabaster, His Honour Sir J. H. Kemp, Capt. G. E. Mirehouse, Col. L. G. Bird and Party, Capt. Stewart and Party, Mrs. Col. C. N. Hilding and Party, Mrs. Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Bladrick, Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Davenport-Brown, Mr. Rolfe, Mr. Lammert, Mr. Stopani Thomson, Capt. P. Green, Miss Stevenson, Mr. W. D. Johnson, Miss S. Swift, Miss B. B. Bichenor, Mr. H. Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Herace, Mr. Lane and Party, Mr. Stokink and party, Mr. and Mrs. Roton and party, Mr. Galford and party, Mr. Bates and party, Mr. and Mrs. Finns, Mr. Somers and party, Mr. A. D. Bennett and party, Mr. Dullin, Mr. and Mrs. Williamson and party, Mr. K. G. Haig, Mr. and Mrs. Denison and party, Mr. and Mrs. K. Bougan, Mr. Kennan, Mr. Graham, Mrs. Chambers, Mr. and Mrs. A. Brostedt, Mrs. Varela, Mr. E. Rouillon, Mr. and Mrs. Dowdall, Mrs. Cartwright, Mr. and Mrs. Stellingwerf, Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Brearley, Mr. and Mrs. Fleming, Capt. K. A. Wilkins, Mrs. Pfemenschmidt, Mr. T. N. Frost, Mr. A. D. Stein, Mr. H. C. Kuhl, Mrs. Mancini.

Another function of a similar nature is being arranged to take place at the Repulse Bay Hotel on Saturday, December 3.

Over 200 attended the tea dance on Sunday and enjoyed two hours of sociable recreation between 5 and 7 p.m. Similar tea dances will be held every Sunday at Repulse Bay throughout the winter season.

The Symphonic Concert.

The symphonic concert at the Peninsula Hotel last Sunday evening provided these present with a most enjoyable entertainment. The interesting instrumental compositions, mostly well-known favourites, which comprised the programme, were much appreciated, and Mr. Podolsky was accorded well deserved applause for his excellently executed solo "Cantilena" by Goltzmann. The public support given to these concerts have been most gratifying, thereby encouraging their continuance.

On conclusion of the ceremony at the Cenotaph, His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, followed by the Commander-in-Chief, Officer Commanding the Troops, Officer Commanding the Royal Air Force, and those Members of Council, Judges and Senior Government officers desirous of attending the ceremony, will rendezvous at Government House and proceed to the Chinese Memorial on foot. They will arrive at about 11.45 and wreaths will be laid.

ARMISTICE DAY

PROGRAMME OF FRIDAY'S OBSERVANCE

The following official programme of the observance of Armistice Day, next Friday has been issued:

The ceremony at the Cenotaph will commence at 10.45 a.m. when all troops, choir, and representative bodies are to be in position.

Shortly afterwards, the Officer Commanding the Troops, Hongkong area, will arrive, followed later by the Commander-in-Chief, the Clergy, and His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government.

At 10.59, the massed buglers of the 1st Battalion, The Lincolnshire Regiment, and the 1st Battalion, The South Wales Borderers, will sound the "Last Post," and all Officers will salute.

At 11 sharp, one gun will be fired by one of H. M.'s ships, and the Silence will follow. At the end of two minutes the gun will fire a second round of blank to terminate the silence.

The buglers will sound the "Reveille" immediately after the last sound of the second gun has died away, and the whole assembly will sing the hymn "O God Our Help in Ages Past." Copies of the hymn will be distributed prior to the ceremony.

This will be followed by prayers and the Blessing by the Clergy and the singing of God Save the King.

On conclusion of the hymn His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government will lay a wreath, followed by the Commander-in-Chief, the Troops, the Senior Air Force Officer, a representative of the Royal Merchant Navy, a representative of the Chinese community, representatives of foreign navies and armies should they so desire, representatives of the Royal Navy, Military and Air Forces, British Legion, Old Comrades Associations, and all civilian bodies. Individuals may then lay wreaths.

Ceremony at Chinese Memorial.

On conclusion of the ceremony at the Cenotaph, His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, followed by the Commander-in-Chief, Officer Commanding the Troops, Officer Commanding the Royal Air Force, and those Members of Council, Judges and Senior Government officers desirous of attending the ceremony, will rendezvous at Government House and proceed to the Chinese Memorial on foot. They will arrive at about 11.45 and wreaths will be laid.

CANTON GENERAL'S SPEECH

Canton, Nov. 7.

High moral character and decent living among public servants were again emphasized by General Chan Chai-tong, Commander-in-Chief of the First Group Army, at the weekly memorial service this morning.

Efforts to suppress gambling and other forms of dissipation by public servants, he said, have been enforced by the police and gen-darmes who are searching the restaurants, clubs, tea houses and other places to arrest Government servants engaging in gambling and other vices.

The General denounced unscrupulous merchants for smuggling, and said they usually sought the aid or connivance of officials. To prevent Government employees from engaging in smuggling the death penalty, he stressed, was being adopted.

Touching on bandit suppression, General Chan said the brigands in Hauwon mountain in South Kwangtung have been exterminated, and forests on the mountain are to be cleared and converted into villages so that the bandits will not be able to use them as lairs.—Central Press.

ARMY KITCHEN RAIDED

SERVANT SENT TO PRISON

Wong Lai, 30, was sentenced to a total of four months' hard labour by Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court to-day for burglariously entering Austin Barracks with intent to commit a felony, and for the theft of a tin of black pepper.

The police stated that the arrest of the accused was brought about by Lance Sergeant French. Noticing a door in the kitchen open, he brought an Army policeman to the spot, and together they entered the kitchen, where they encountered the accused. He had apparently been disturbed by their entry, and a capacious sack which he had brought along with him lay empty on the ground. He was also found to have a key which fitted most of the locks in the place. The pantry at the time was fully stocked with rations for the soldiers' consumption on the following morning.

Accused, said the police, was employed as an assistant to the military cooks on a monthly wage of $15. He lived in the servants' quarters, which were quite a long way from the kitchen.

The Royal Observatory reports that the anticyclone is moving eastward and appears to be centred in the Eastern Sea. The depression is situated to the north of Hokkaido. A typhoon is indicated about 150 miles north west of Yap; its direction of motion is unknown. Fresh monsoon will prevail along the coast to the south of Foochow and over the Northern China Sea. Local forecast: —N.E. winds, fresh; cloudy.

U.S. STOKER IN TROUBLE

DISTURBANCE AT A RESTAURANT

Joseph Elmer Kibel, a stoker in the U.S.S. Pope was charged before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court, to-day, with riotous and disorderly conduct at Kato's Restaurant at Johnston Road, Wanchai, last night.

Detective Sub-Inspector Rozesky, prosecuting, stated that, accompanied by another foreigner in civilian attire, Kibel went to the Restaurant at 9.15 last night, and kicked at the door for admittance. Once inside the pair began to make trouble.

Kato went to the Police Station to report the matter, and, during his absence, Kibel continued to create a disturbance. He picked up an iron door-bar and chased the inmates about. He attempted to get away through the back door when the police arrived, but was arrested by Sgt. Williamson.

Kibel, who admitted the charge, but had nothing to say, was fined $10, and also ordered to pay compensation to the restaurant to the extent of $15 for damage done to furniture.

alleged to have, been implicated.

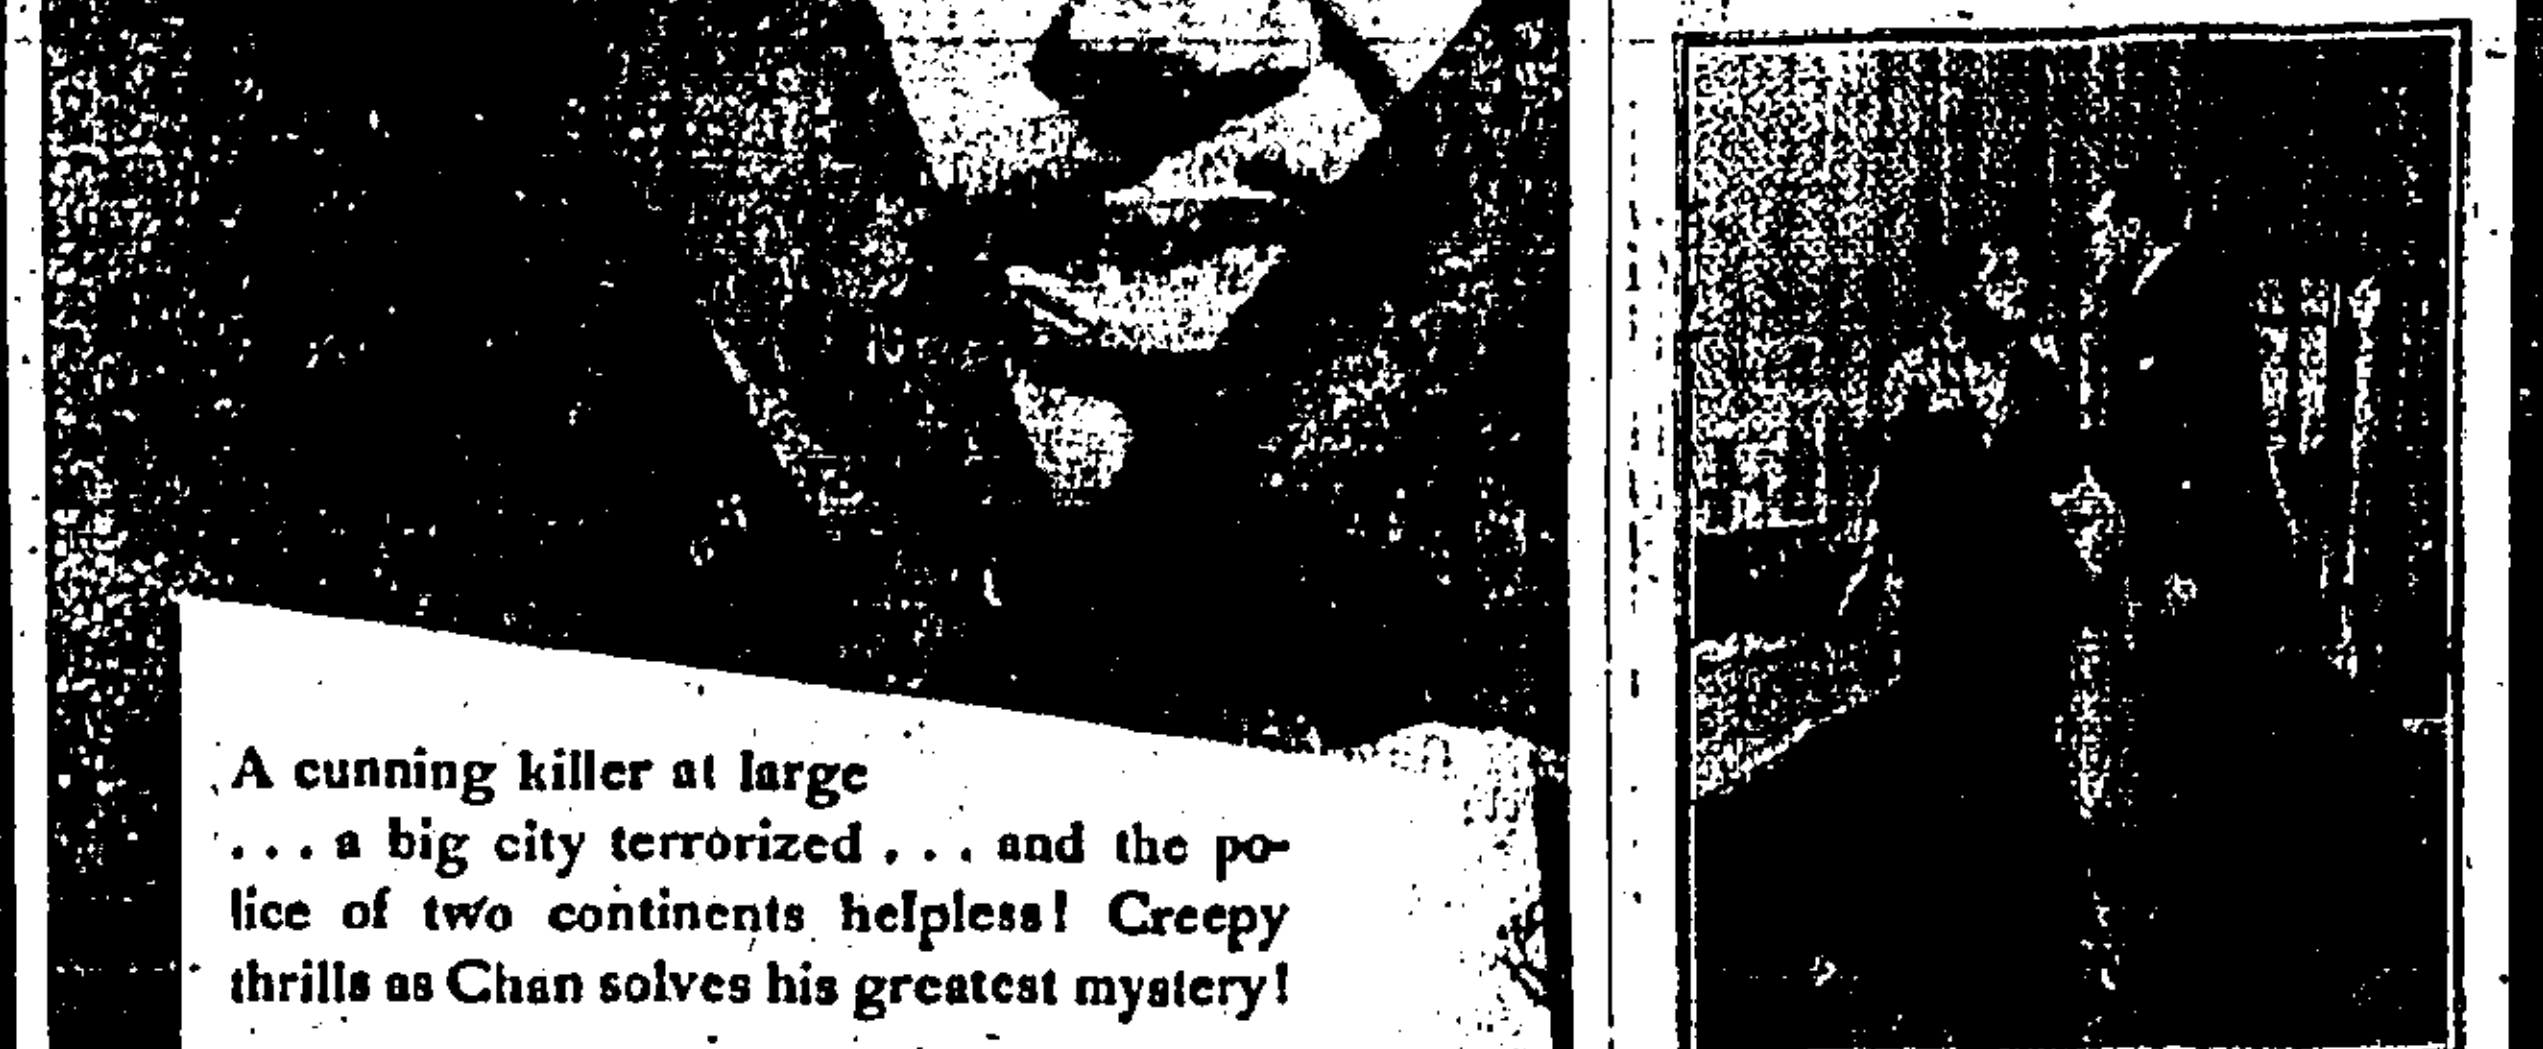

According to a report which was made to the police last evening, Mrs. Holmes was waiting for a chair outside 5, Bowen Road shortly after 6 o'clock last evening when two men approached her and threw a quantity of pepper into her face and over her clothes.

No attempt appears to have been made to rob the lady, and the two men immediately made good their escape.

GRIMSBY TRAWLER DISASTER DRAMA: 13 DEAD

LAST SEEN CLINGING TO MASTS

MASTER'S LUCKY
SHORE TRIP

EYE-WITNESSES

TRAGEDY IN NORTH
NORWAY

(Our Own Correspondent).

London, Nov. 8.
Last seen clinging to the masts before the sinking Grimsby trawler, Golden Deep, finally heeled over and sank, thirteen members of the crew were drowned in a small harbour in the extreme north of Norway yesterday.

The tragedy took place in the full view of dozens of people on the shore, who were powerless to effect a rescue, efforts to launch the only boats available proving impossible in the violent weather. The captain and three passengers of the ill-fated trawler escaped the fate of the others. They had gone ashore on business before the gale which was raging increased and broke the anchors of the Golden Deep and placed the trawler at the mercy of the waves.

ALMOST A HURRICANE.

Bitterly cold weather was prevailing and none of the men who went down with the trawler could have lived for five minutes in the wild waters.

The gale was already blowing when the captain and his passengers went ashore. It steadily increased until it was blowing at almost hurricane force. The Golden Deep was observed to be in difficulties. Suddenly, the anchor chains snapped under the terrible strain and the vessel was carried away in the grip of a strong current, with waves breaking continuously over her.

FATEFUL MOMENTS.

She appears to have struck an obstruction soon afterward and it became obvious to those on shore that the vessel was sinking.

The crew climbed the masts, doubtless in the hope that the ship would settle on the bottom leaving them clear of the water, but the vessel heeled over and all were lost.

VICTORY BY INNINGS

FIRST M.C.C. WIN IN AUSTRALIA

SOUTH AUSTRALIA OUTPLAYED

Adelaide, Nov. 8.
The M.C.C. are within sight of their first victory of the present tour in Australia.

With only four wickets remaining in their second innings, South Australia require 169 runs to avoid defeat by an innings.

There is a definite prospect of a conclusion early this afternoon. All hopes for a recovery by South Australia were practically destroyed before lunch to-day by the magnificent bowling of the English players.

At the close of play last night, South Australia had obtained 105 runs for the loss of two wickets. This morning four further wickets fell for an addition of 69 runs, the tourists pressing home the advantage already established.

The M.C.C. led by 344 on the first innings and compelled a follow-on.

Lunch Scores:—
M.C.C.—631 for 9 wickets (Sutcliffe 154, Leyland 127, Wyatt 68, Jardine 108 not out, Larwood 81).

South Australia: First Innings.—290 (Richardson 131, Nitschke 69, Brown 4 for 81, Verity 3 for 15).

Second Innings: 175 for 6 wickets.

INNINGS AND 128.

Later.
The M.C.C. won by an innings and 128 runs, South Australia being dismissed in their second innings for 216 runs. Catchlove was top scorer with 65 runs, which occupied him three hours and twenty-nine minutes, during which he hit three boundaries.

Verity again bowled magnificently, taking 5 wickets for 42 runs. Bowes claimed two wickets for 57 runs and Brown took 2 for 66.—Reuter.

PACTS WITH HONOUR

CANADA AND IMPERIAL PREFERENCE

LIBERAL VIEWS

Ottawa, Nov. 7.
The opposition party in Canada views the Ottawa Agreements in much the same light as the Liberals and the Labour Party in Britain.

If we are returned to power, to-day declared Mr. Mackenzie King, the Liberal leader and ex-Prime Minister, the Liberal Party will not consider itself bound by any policy initiated by the present administration.

Mr. Mackenzie King was addressing the Canadian House of Commons during a discussion concerning the duration of the Ottawa Agreements.

Mr. R. B. Bennett, who played an important part in the conclusion of the Anglo-Canadian Agreement had earlier informed the House that while the Canadian Parliament was entirely free constitutionally, he considered it in honour bound to observe the agreements for the stipulated period of five years.—Reuter.

INCREASE OF 58,000 IN SEVEN MONTHS

Dublin, Nov. 1.

An increase in Ireland's unemployment figures from 30,000 to 88,000 in seven months is one of the many difficult problems facing Mr. de Valera's cabinet, which is to meet to discuss the immediate future. These figures are for the Irish Free State only.

The cessation of preference duties from Britain as for November 15 will mean an all-round increase in the cost of food and household commodities.

It is estimated that in one month £2,300,000 has been paid to exporters as a bounty on cattle, butter and bacon since the new duties were put on Irish products to reimburse Britain for the land annuity default by the Free State.—Reuter.

HOOVER'S HOPES

RETURN SWING OF PENDULUM

CLOSE ANALYSIS OF OUTLOOK

The United States goes to the poll to-day, to elect the next incumbent of the Presidency and the White House.

Every pointer suggests that Mr. Franklin Roosevelt will be returned by a sweeping majority, to break a sequence of Republican Presidents since the late Woodrow Wilson.

An element of uncertainty still remains, however. America is traditionally Republican in political colour. Supporters of Mr. Hoover claim a possibility of snatching a victory, seeing in the events of the past few days the commencement of a swing away from Mr. Roosevelt.

Impartial observers admit that Mr. Roosevelt's forward strides have been somewhat checked, but are of opinion that he has made too big an advance to permit a Hoover recovery at this late stage.

"CONQUERING HERO"
Mr. Roosevelt recently "burn-stormed" the West and returned much after the fashion of a conquering hero.

The more he travelled the higher rose a surge of opinion everywhere that he will be elected to succeed President Hoover.

There are several reasons why the Republicans have not abandoned hope of victory, but in no contest for decades has there been a more complete tendency on the part of politicians and political analysts to predict a Democratic year.

Seldom have more States been described as doubtful. Never did the straw votes indicate such startling switches of sentiment in "rock-ribbed" Republican States. For the first time a Democratic campaign manager is able to refuse to concede a single State to the Republicans without becoming an object of ridicule.

G. O. P. WORRIES.

The revelation of great anti-Hoover sentiment in the West has been one of the most important factors in the rapid growth of pro-Roosevelt prophecy. Seasoned political correspondents were astonished at the signs of success of Roosevelt's appeals to the West's progressive and independent voters.

Now most experts believe that Roosevelt will win with the "Solid South," most of the West, most of the Middle West and a highly uncertain number of electoral votes from the East.

Republican managers, many of them privately pessimistic, and all of them worried, have kept up a steady counter-offensive which they are now claiming has started the tide the other way.

President Hoover himself led the attack by penetrating the disaffected West for his speech at Des Moines, Ia., which sounded the keynote for lesser campaigners. Many Republican leaders found cause for renewed hope in the generally favourable reception which Iowans accorded to the President.

COOLIDGE ENLISTED.

Mr. Calvin Coolidge, one of the party's greatest drawing cards, has been actively "stumping" for Mr. Hoover but the Republican ticket continues to be handicapped by the absence of any substantial improvement in business and by the failure of its managers to plan and execute an intelligent, vigorous programme. They have been too busy defending themselves against criticisms.

Mr. Roosevelt, meanwhile, has saved himself for a final battle in (Continued on Page 7.)

LINKING UP NATIONAL ARMIES

CHIANG KAI-SHEK'S RADIO STATION

AN INTERESTING DEVELOPMENT

(Special to "Telegraph").

Shanghai, Nov. 8.
The erection of a 75-kilowatt wireless station just outside Nanking has just been completed.

It is for the purpose of enabling General Chiang Kai-shek to talk directly to his armies totalling approximately one and a half million men, spread over an area of about 2,000,000 square miles.

The station will be opened on November 12 next, on Sun Yat-sen's birthday and thereafter, Chiang Kai-shek's Monday memorial speech will be broadcast to all his divisional headquarters from Kanan to Szechuan and Kwangtung.

When the Generalissimo wishes to give blanket instructions, the same process will be employed.

In addition, it is learned, there will be broadcast daily from the wireless station, a special programme, principally for entertainment, for all the National armies, which have been supplied with specially-made receivers with loud speakers.—Reuter.

NEW-YORK NIGHT LIFE MYSTERY

DEATH OF PARIS JEWELLER

New York, Nov. 3.
A New York night life mystery over the death of a rich Jeweller from Paris is declared to have been solved with arrest of a blonde woman and two male associates in what the police call a "hit and run" speak-easy venture.

M. Achille Mirner, a Frenchman, went out with $1,800 some days ago to see what night life in New York was like. A few hours later he staggered back to his hotel, fatally bitten up. Detectives learned that he had been drinking in a "hit and run" speak-easy, which changes its location occasionally.

After thorough investigations the police last night arrested Mrs. Eleanor Thompson, an attractive 22-year-old blonde, and her two male companions, Lawrence Ganz and Herman Newbury. They will be charged with murder.—Reuter.

THE ALL-EMPIRE BROADCASTS

TRANSMISSION TIMES.

London, Nov. 7.
The British Broadcasting Corporation has now completed arrangements for the scheme for supplying all parts of the British Empire with a wireless service from December 19th next.

On short wave length from Daventry two-hour programmes will be transmitted at the following times:—Australian Zone, 9.30 to 11.30 a.m.; Indian Zone, 2.30 to 4.30 p.m.; African Zone, 6.30 to 8 p.m.; West African Zone, 8.30 to 10.30 p.m.; Canadian Zone, 1 to 3 a.m.

One innovation is the provision of a list of programmes, recorded on gramophone discs, for transmission from local stations throughout the Empire.—British Wireless.

BRITAIN AND THE GOLD STANDARD

NO RETURN FOR PRESENT

EXPERT DEBATE AT GENEVA

Geneva, Nov. 8.
The attitude of Britain in regard to the gold standard is the dominating issue before the monetary side of the conference of experts preparatory to the World Economic Conference.

The issue was debated at considerable length yesterday and was still alive when the experts closed their deliberations last night.

The British delegates, Sir Frederick Leith-Ross and Mr. Phillips, insisted that the recovery of world commodity price levels and a freer flow of trade and capital must precede any action by Great Britain that may eventually be contemplated in connexion with the British currency and the gold standard. These must be some guarantee that the gold standard will work satisfactorily before Britain can stabilise the pound.

It is noteworthy that the Japanese delegate, Mr. Tsushima supported the British views, adding that a return to the gold standard by those countries forced off must also be governed by national domestic conditions.—Reuter.

(Our Own Correspondent).

London, Nov. 8.
After the turmoil of the elections, Germany is relatively quiet, pondering, as are other European countries, the possible consequences of the Reichstag stalemate.

Twice in less than five months, Germany has indicated beyond mistake its disapproval of the von Papen Government and at the same time has refused to endorse Hitler's claim to leadership.

PRESIDENT'S PROBLEM.

President von Hindenburg is faced with a grave problem in view of the clear verdict of the country against von Papen, but there are those who believe that the President will continue to support the Chancellor, being of opinion that parliamentary government in Germany has failed.

Many papers see the Constitution being superseded by autocratic methods, although the Socialist journals declare that the German people are too intelligent to allow a small minority to tell them what to do.

NAZI MANIFESTO.

Herr Hitler, the Nazi leader, is demanding the resignation of the von Papen Government.

"Ninety per cent. of the Reichstag is against the von Papen Government. It is clear that the Nazis must take the initiative in enforcing the will of the people. This is the aim of the Nazis now," he proclaims in a manifesto to his party.

The manifesto goes on to point out that the presence of a hundred Communist deputies in the Reichstag constitutes a grave danger. The Nazis must become the bulwark, protecting the Germans against Bolshevism.

NO COMPROMISE.

Hitler declares that he will not compromise with the von Papen clique, but will continue to fight for Nazi ideals.

KOWLOON MOTOR FATALITY

EUROPEAN FIGURES IN MISHAP

Injuries which subsequently proved fatal were received by a young Chinese who was knocked down by a motor car which was being driven by Mr. G. G. Wood in Nathan Road last evening shortly before 9 o'clock.

Mr. Wood was driving past the Orient Tobacco Factory at about 8.45 p.m. when his car ran into Pang Ching, aged 15 years, of 462, Shanghai Street. The lad sustained external injuries to his arms and legs and was taken to the Kowloon Hospital, where he died at midnight.

REGULATING TEA

NEGOTIATIONS NOT BEING DELAYED

London, Nov. 7.
The India and Ceylon Tea Associations have issued a statement to the effect that negotiations for the regulation of tea exports are proceeding satisfactorily, without any delay other than that involved by the necessity of consulting continuously with Eastern interests.—Reuter.

CALL of the WEST

BY R. G. MONTGOMERY

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

Stan Ball, an agent for cattle interests, from Asper Delo in his office. Ball accuses Delo of having men shot who are sent out to check his timbering activities at Three Rivers. Ball says he is making a personal check. Delo says he will personally see that Ball does not make the check.

Upon leaving Delo's office, Ball saves a girl from kidnapers. She proves to be Delo's daughter, Dona. When Ball learns her name he tells her he is Stanley Black and slips away.

Dudley Winters, in love with Dona, agrees to go to Three Rivers and get Delo to come back. Dona goes with him and at their first stop Dudley produces a marriage licence and urges Dona to marry him, arguing that Delo will not go on a manhunt if they do. Dona barely misses the marriage by meeting Ball on his way to Three Rivers.

At the camp, Swergin, Asper's timber boss, tries to make Dona stay in camp. She slips away from men he has ordered to watch her and ride. She sees her father attacked and shot. Swergin comes to her rescue. Dudley and Swergin both warn her not to ride alone as Ball will attack her as he has her father. Dona goes out again and when she starts back, finds she is followed. Her pursues prove to be Swergin, who takes her back to camp in spite of the fact that she lashed him across the face. Asper is much wiser. The storekeeper is knocked out and his place robbed. Ball is blamed. Swergin refuses to keep news of the hunt from Asper and Dona finds him in the sick room. Asper is in a rage.

CHAPTER XVI.

Stanley Ball thought he understood how a hunted animal must feel. His shelter was a cave high under the rim of Folly Peak where none but the warriest veteran could find him. The trail to this den led through a slash in a great rock wall and was hidden by springing alders and black birch.

There was a little open shelf for his mare and the cave was fairly comfortable. By using tinder dry and resinous wood he was able to have a fire over which to cook the simple fare on which he lived. He was sitting before a bed of glowing coals, taking stock of the situation in which he found himself.

Ball admitted, as he stared into the embers, that if he had known one-tenth what he now knew he would never have come to Three Rivers to get the low-down on the Delo-Timber interests. He was forced to admit that he was in love with Dona Delo, hopelessly in love with her, and that he could not get away from her.

Love for Dona had made him remain on Folly Mountain until he was branded a desperate guilty feeling crept over Stan. He criminal and a murderer. Now even was the cause of all this. He had thought Dona had not married the young man he saw riding in the lower country every day, he would confound Swergin! He's lettin' still be unable to offer his soiled name to her. Ball kicked dirt over the fire and arose. One thing was sure, he had to have more supplies. Carrying his food on a horse without cutting the animal's speed made it necessary for him to forage often. Then, too, there was the trouble encountered in getting the supplies. He had to steal them.

All the way down the mountain he studied these bitter problems. He was half-decided to turn himself in and take the consequence, which he knew would be a first-class lynching.

The moon was not yet over the rim of Folly Mountain and Ball could move at a fair pace through the blue gloom. His black mare was invisible as ink and as silent as a panther. He rode to the edge of the clearing above the camp and dismounted. Tying the mare in a thicket, he moved swiftly toward the lights of the buildings.

First the commissioner was paid a swift visit. Stan had worked a board loose from a back window to gain ready entrance. Within 15 minutes he had secured what he needed while Old Sims sat in the front of the store nursing his bandaged head. Stan smiled to himself grimly as he took a last look at the bandaged figure in front.

Catching the food, Stan moved along the dark side of the main building. He was looking for a particular room, drawn by a force that he could not resist. He knew the room, but found it dark. Further along the wall were two lighted windows. Stan edged toward them. The nearest window was open and he was able, by flattening himself against the wall, to look inside.

The scene within the room was a tense one. Dudley was standing in the background. Dona sat on the foot of her father's bed, trying to quiet him. Asper Delo was as angry as that day in his office when he had faced him. A criminal and a murderer. Now even was the cause of all this. He had thought Dona had not married the young man he saw riding in the lower country every day, he would confound Swergin! He's lettin'

Stan Ball tried to pull himself away from the window but he could not. He was fascinated by the stary, tear-drenched eyes of the girl he loved. He felt an urge to leap through the window and shake Dudley Winters savage.

Why didn't the fool comfort her? Why didn't he take her in his arms and kiss those tears away? Asper Delo's deep voice broke in on his thoughts.

"I guess I'm an old fool but Swergin's blundering made me see red. Of course your happiness is all that really counts with me. Now what do you want to do?"

"We want you to stay in bed for a couple more days and then go back with us and help us get a home fixed up." Dona's soft, alto was tremulous.

Ball made fools out of all of us. He'll let that dirty gun-toter shoot up the whole camp. I'm going after him myself!"

"Now, Dad, be reasonable! You'd be no match for a healthy man like Ball." Dona was almost in tears.

"I'm sick and tired of being coddled because of a little puncture in the shoulder. I've packed more lead without even lying down than that skunk ever saw!" Asper roared.

Dona leaped to her feet. She reached into her dress and pulled out a stiff paper. "Dad, please listen to me."

With a rumble Asper settled back against the pillows. His lips were white and he was shaking. "Dad, Dudley and I have been having a secret for you. We are married." The words slipped from her lips almost tonguelessly.

Dudley aroused himself with a jerk and came forward. He seemed unable to speak. Asper took his paper without a word and unfolded it. He stared at it for a full minute before he spoke.

"Stan Dean married you," he said slowly. His anger seemed to melt and his hand was shaking. "Why, D, you should have told me! This has been a pretty poor honeymoon!"

"Now you see why I wanted you to give all this up and come back with us?" Dona's eyes were clouded with tears.

Asper's gaze rose to Dudley's face. Dudley blushed and stammered, "I sort of overlooked asking for the bride."

Stan Ball tried to pull himself away from the window but he could not. He was fascinated by the stary, tear-drenched eyes of the girl he loved. He felt an urge to leap through the window and shake Dudley Winters savage.

Why didn't the fool comfort her? Why didn't he take her in his arms and kiss those tears away? Asper Delo's deep voice broke in on his thoughts.

"I guess I'm an old fool but Swergin's blundering made me see red. Of course your happiness is all that really counts with me. Now what do you want to do?"

"We want you to stay in bed for a couple more days and then go back with us and help us get a home fixed up." Dona's soft, alto was tremulous.

MOONLIGHT, a picturesque mountain camp, a pretty girl and a dashing cowboy. With such romantic elements of course there's a love story in "Call of the West" by R. G. Montgomery. There's adventure and excitement too in this thrilling new serial.

"Sure, that's just what we want." Dudley seemed suddenly to have come to his senses. Stan Ball pulled back from the window. Dona had been keeping from the marriage from her father. One thing relieved him. That was that Asper Delo would be out of the man hunt. He would have only Swergin and his gang to worry with. Stan's anger against Asper Delo had suddenly lost its edge. He determined to get away regardless of whether he was caught making his escape or not.

Asper Delo's voice rolled out into the night. It was softer now and held a hint of mellowness. The old timber king was completely taken back by the new twist of events. He cared more for Dona than for all his timber workings. He completely lost his wrathful anger as the two young folks stood before him, flushed and happy.

"You tell Swergin to take care of this hunt and to stay with it until he gets his man. He need not report to me any more. Now you youngsters run along and let an old man think a bit." Asper lay back among the pillows and smiled.

"I'm sorry it came about like this," Dudley stepped to Asper's side as he spoke. "But I'll take care of Dona and make her happy." Asper raised on one elbow. "You'd better, young man. You'd better!" He sank back and half-closed his eyes as a sign of dismissal.

Dudley caught Dona's arm and pushed her gently from the room. Ball remained flattened against the wall. A wave of loneliness swept over him, a bitter wave carrying with it a vivid reminder of what he had become. He could not even see Dona again or be near her. He would have to strike for the Mexican border and live by his gun. That is the law of the man who is branded killer. He can never turn back. If he must always swing ready at his hip for he is outside of society.

Stan took a deep breath and edged back along the wall. He did not halt at Dona's window but slid past it. A light shone out from under the blinds and he could hear a voice inside but he did not wish to eavesdrop. He had reached the corner of the building and was about to turn and retrace his steps to the place where he had left the cache of food when he felt a hard, finger-like object jab him in the back. A gruff voice commanded, "Put 'em up, Ball, and keep 'em up!"

Twisting his head as he raised his arms Stan could make out the bulky figure of Swergin behind him. In the dim light he could see a fiendish grin on the thick lips of the timber boss.

CAPITALISM AND SOVIETISM

PROF. ROBERTSON'S LECTURE

FUTURE HOPES

"Capitalism and the Russian Plan" was the subject chosen by Professor R. Robertson for his Presidential address before the Law and Commerce Society of the Hongkong University last night.

In opening, Professor Robertson said:—I have chosen this subject for certain reasons which seem to me to have some weight. There is a great deal of loose talk about the failure of the prevailing economic system, much of it uninformed, arising from an instinctive but unreasoned disgust at the spectacle of the war-debts settlements must be want amid plenty, as the saying goes. At the same time there is much confusion and undigested information regarding Russia, leading to an incomplete appraisal of the Soviet experiment. The two trends of thought are, however, intermingled, repulsion due to the seeming dislocation or disorderliness of private capitalism finding its complement in the attraction exercised by a system which is planned or coordinated.

CAPITALIST CHAOS.

During the last year or two the eyes of many have been turned towards Russia who formerly would have been either hostile to the trend of events there or indifferent. Those who were already convinced of the inevitability of Marxian Socialism have during that period found their armoury of argument enlarged, and their hopes quickened. But it is not of them that I thought when I chose this topic.

It was rather of those who are not specially attracted to the dogmas of Marxism, who are indeed by habit and temperament repelled by them; but who, appalled by the chaos they see in the capitalist countries, disturbed by the apparent hopelessness of discovering a remedy among existing economic agencies, bewildered by the varying prescriptions of publicists, and half-convinced that even the right prescription, if it could not be applied without some far-reaching change in the whole apparatus of production and distribution, are asking themselves whether there is not something in this planning business after all, and whether, even if it does involve the scrapping of our present notions of incentive and reward, it would not be better than a system in which, for long periods (and, who knows, perhaps now permanently) rewards and therefore incentives are absent entirely.

Then there is this other point, that these people are really not sure whether the planning that they hear and read of in Russia is inextricably linked up with the abolition of private property, and with the "dictatorship of the proletariat." Perhaps after all we might be able to take a leaf out of their book, to emulate these Bolsheviks in the constructive planning of economic activity, to excel them indeed, without going the whole hog, so to speak, and swallowing entire the principle and practice of communism or Marxism or Leninism or whatever they call it.

THE WAR DEBTS.

After outlining some features of the Soviet system of Marxian Socialism, the speaker continued: There are two spheres in which measures are called for, in my opinion, the international and the national. I have already suggested that it is in the international sphere that the causes of the intensity of our present disorders are to be found. Here much that is urgent calls for action. In the first place, the dislocation caused by the burden of inter-governmental payments arising out of the war-debts settlements must be got rid of. These payments, which on their present basis, project far into the future, are to be remembered, not the normal type of international indebtedness. They represent interest and sinking fund on loans which were not devoted to the development of production in any direct sense, and are therefore sheer burdens upon the industry of those who pay them. They thus enter into the balances of international payments as a disturbing factor.

ECONOMIC NATIONALISM.

Next, there is the excessive economic nationalism which has prevailed in post-war years. This policy represents a departure from the policy which prevailed before the war. There seems to be no adequate reason why such a policy should continue with the degree of intensity which it has assumed. It is linked up, no doubt, with a feature of modern industry which cannot wholly be attributed to the war, although encouraged by it, namely, the development of large-scale production which makes economies possible, but which makes it necessary to have assured markets for the product. The easiest way of obtaining such markets, especially when so many countries that were formerly producers of foodstuffs and raw materials have taken to manufacturing, is to protect the home producer in the home market by a tariff wall.

Then we have the spectacle of each country vying with others in building tariff walls higher and higher, when the interests of all would be much better served by a return to the system of interchange of goods produced where most effective production is possible. Any international economic conference which omits this item from its agenda is unlikely to result in any effective amelioration of the world position.

FUTURE HOPES.

Concluding his address, Professor Robertson said:—We need

MANCHUKUO LOAN

30 MILLION YEN ADVANCE BY BANKS

Tokyo, Nov. 7.
A syndicate of the leading Japanese Banks has tentatively agreed to loan the Manchukuo state 30 million yen on a five per cent. issue at 97 redeemable in five years. The security is the salt and opium revenue.

It is reported that the Yokohama Specie Bank will invite British, French and American members of the consortium to participate in the Manchukuo loan.—Reuter.

not believe that the present depression spells the end and collapse of the capitalist system. Given adequate statesmanship; especially in the international sphere, so that the exceptional disturbing factors of the post-war era may be removed or diminished in their effect, there is no reason why the process of recovery should not evidence itself in the usual manner, through the diminution of stocks and the consequent commencement of a rise in prices, communicating itself throughout the whole. Monetary measures taken now may help to assist such a recovery, so far as the monetary and credit system have been out of their proper relationship to productivity. And measures may be devised not perhaps completely to eliminate the unstable rhythm of industrial activity but greatly to modify it. And if this can be done, those who are now looking with envy towards the apparent order (at however a low level of welfare) in Russia, may then welcome the hope that in the future as in a not distant past, rising standards of material welfare may be compatible with liberty.

thing else, even if it disagrees with you. What business is it of the waiter's anyway?

As you will now have a minute or so to wait, you can occupy it by sending for the manager and complaining of the delay. If he doesn't have you thrown out, use the wrong knife and fork for the fish and show your independence. It is good that also to turn round suddenly as the waiter is pouring the wine, and jog his elbow.

Finally, give the waiter twice the tip you ought to. It humiliates him to think that he is in an inferior position even to a worm like you, and dependent on your charity, and he will be furious. Such is Fame.

One of the disadvantages of being a famous man is that you are overhastily being asked to open bazaars, lay foundation stones, and what not. True, up till now I am only asked to open tins of sardines, and to lay the linen, but I must be getting on. The Associated Errand Boys of our suburb have asked me to be president of their football club this season.

I have already bought a new hat, one size larger, since I have seen, in imagination, my name on the fixture list, with a real "Eqq" after it.

I enclosed a guinea to the secretary with a letter of thanks which ran to eight pages, dwelling on my love of the sport, but I don't think I shall send the letter. The lad who collects my empties is a member, and I foolishly asked him why they selected me for the honour. He practically gave me the minutes of the meeting.

It seems that old Bungstarr, our local M.P., said he'd be hanged if he'd cough up more than five bob this year for any more of these dashed impostments, and the club needed new goalposts. So the secretary said they'd have to find a real mug this time, and, after some discussion they decided that I was it.

Well, they'll get their guinea, if the bank cashes the cheque, and I'm going to get my money's worth by sending a full report of my benevolence—in the third person, complete with the "Eqq"—to the local paper. It will amuse George anyway.

FASHION NOTES.

The Newest Coiffures.

There are all kinds of curious coiffures to be seen this season. They may be intricate and tortuous, or plain and simple, with perhaps only a semi-circle of upright curls surrounding the head like a diadem.

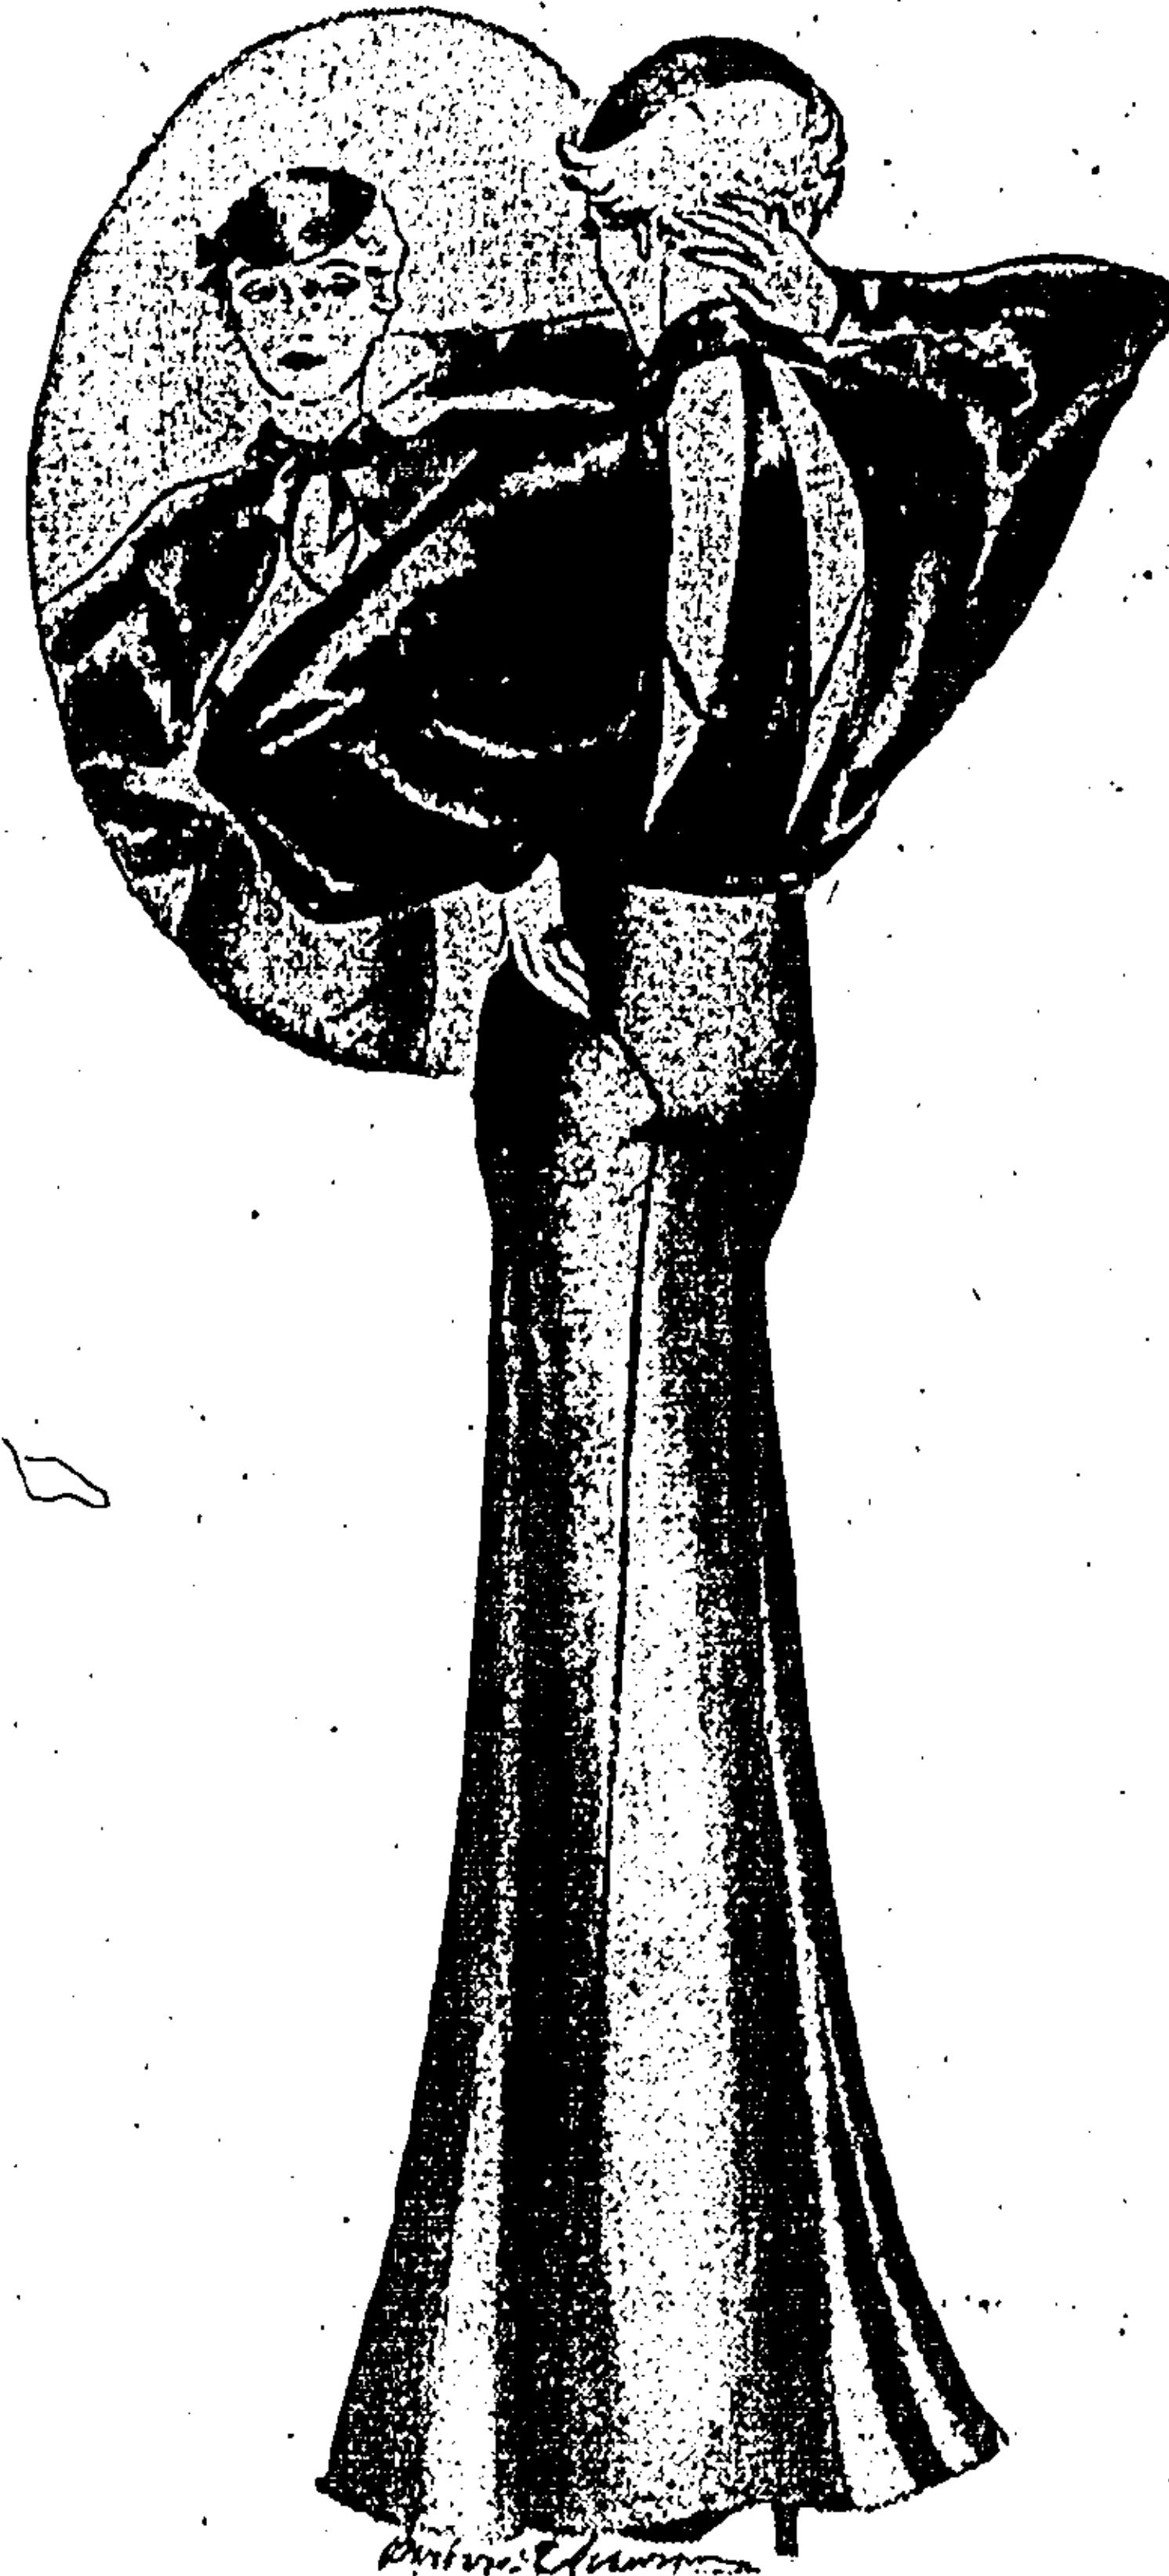

A wind-blown effect on one side of the forehead with curls on the other and flat curls arranged in two regular rolls on one side of the head, make one elaborate coiffure while a neat little chignon for the women who are letting their hair grow again adorns the nape of the neck of another.

There is no untidiness about these new coiffures. People have not used to clean and sculptured lines, and it is essential that hair-dressing to-day shall be flat and severe.

A transparent lacquer is being used by some women. Sometimes the lacquer is in the same colour as the wearer's natural hair, though very often other shades are chosen, and, for evening wear, the hair may be lacquered in dull silver or gold.

Materials this season are less elaborate, there are few heavy satins, no rich laces, or velvets. The material most in vogue is cotton. Cotton is so disguised as to look like anything but what it is, or it may resemble cotton and get away with it beautifully.

The new line is diagonal, and the new trimming is a race between dots and stripes. A white pique evening dress, worn by one of the Paris leaders of fashion made quite a sensation the other evening. It flared like an anemone; the shoulder straps were almost invisible; in fact, it was divinely lovely.

By Joan Savoy

If you want to be daring, and more than a little sophisticated, all you need to do is wear this velvet costume which has allure written in every flowing line.

Black and white have a habit of announcing that they know just a little more about everything than any other colours, and this ensemble goes beyond the usual goal.

The dolman sleeves which make the jacket, a slim collar tie, and the thin pyramid that covers a portion of the back, leaving the rest uncovered, are enticing features.

Svelte hips and a long, slightly circular skirt complete the gown beneath, which is bodiced in white crepe. A high and low neck are achieved in front and back by the closeness of the jacket's collar and the deep V of the dress. The hat and shoes are of velvet.

DIAGONAL LINES.

Give Charming Appearance.

This season's models show that dress-makers appreciate the charm of diagonal lines. Though present fashions look simple to the casual observer, they involve endless thought on the part of designers and makers. The continual lack of trimming and studied simplicity means that much of the charm of a dress depends on cut.

A successful exponent of this line showed a pale apple-green afternoon gown which is likely to meet with success. It was made with elbow-length sleeves and a narrow frill at the bottom of the hem. The rectangular neckline cut lower at the left side was gathered in a small bow. Plain in appearance, the whole dress was composed of diagonally cut sections which lent a gentle flaring movement of the skirt.

A black tulle dress, has a pillar-box red crepe jacket and ash in the same colour tied in a huge bow at one side. Huge sleeves of the balloon order and wide ash fullness are among the newest notes.

A HANDBAG CLASP

A tiny jade elephant makes a charming clasp for an afternoon bag, and the small ring with which to open the bag is also of jade and maracasito. This mount is placed on a bag of old Persian brocade, and, with its pastel colourings, is suitable with almost any coloured frock.

The combination of lines placed at a lower angle contributes a delightfully new look to this gown of tea-rose crepe saconne which is worn with a soft brown leather belt.

STALEMATE AGAIN.

Amongst the many other facts which emerge from the German elections is fresh proof that the people have no use for the von Papen regime. This has been shown in unmistakable fashion. We thus have a position created in which the Government of the day cannot by any possible circumstance secure a majority in the Reichstag. Even calling all its possible allies together, it would still be in an altogether hopeless minority. But if this is true of the von Papen administration, it is so in a lesser degree in the case of all the other parties. After the July election, there was a distinct possibility of the Nazis and Centrists forming a coalition. If they had done so, they could have commanded a small majority in the Reichstag; now, owing to the set-back which Hitler has received, such a combination is an impossibility. Nor can the Communists and Socialists unite, for, despite the fact that they polled some thirteen million votes, their combined party strength is totally insufficient to secure a majority.

The stalemate which has resulted presents Germany with a problem of much complexity. Indeed, it is not too much to say that the country's democratic, parliamentary, republican post-war Constitution is in the balance. How will the puzzle be solved? The von Papen regime may seek to rely once again on pure dictatorship, arguing that constant appeals to the people produce no definite result. But the logical answer to this argument is that von Papen and his colleagues have less right than almost any other group to control the destinies of the nation. Hitler, for example, might well ask, if there is to be a dictatorship, why he should not be at its head, seeing that his party is the strongest. Or even the Socialists and Communists could lay claim to being more representative of public feeling than the von Papen clique. It is, however, to President Hindenburg that we shall have to turn to see how the situation is to be straightened out. It was recently said of the aged President that he alone could claim to have a majority of the electors behind him, but against that submission we have the fact, demonstrated at the latest election, that the people do not approve of the technique of government which he has brought into being by creating the von Papen regime. Hindenburg's idea seems to have been to manage Parliament through selected Ministers who should mould rather than interpret its will. But to attempt to govern a desperate nation amid economic chaos, without a party and against an overwhelming majority, seems like attempting the impossible. Moreover, as we have remarked, the popular vote has clearly shown that it has no liking for the von Papen concept of government.

There can be no doubt that the von Papen Ministry would wish to carry on the nation's affairs on a basis which is in direct conflict with democratic principles. Even quite recently a scheme was outlined for the creation of a kind of Second Chamber which would "control exaggerated Parliamentarianism"—a phrase which possibly means any Parliamentarianism which did not fall in with the dictator's ideas. A further plan put forward was the disenfranchisement of a large number of young people by raising the voters' age-limit from twenty to twenty-five years. This is part of a scheme which was forecasted some little time back, and which the von Papen Government was said to intend to realise by decree, trusting to the retrospective approval of a new Reichstag. It was even hinted that under this plan every father and mother over forty would enjoy a plural vote. Such a fantastic franchise, it hardly needs to be pointed out, would decimate the voting ranks of the Nazis, Communists and Socialists alike. But it would surely be a foolish experiment, helping to confirm youth in its idea that in revolution lies its hope. The crisis which has now arisen is, indeed, full of dangerous possibilities. It will need the most careful and most statesmanlike handling. Let us hope that the traditional common-sense and balance of the German people will, by some means not apparent at the moment, come to the rescue of their distressed and troubled country.

A Fable of Walls.

Once upon a time there was an artisan. Many and beautiful were his wares. And great was the desire of all peoples for them, so that men came from far and near to buy. At first they paid in gold. But after a while many of them had not sufficient gold. Therefore, they said to the artisan: "Take the work of our hands, we pray thee, in exchange for the work of thy hand." The artisan was loath to do this. Yet he saw that he could not refuse so reasonable a request. So he said: "I shall build a wall. Whatsoever goods can be lifted over the wall, those will I accept in payment for my wares." Then began the artisan to build. And he said in his heart: "I shall build high, so high that they who come to buy will be able to send nothing but coins over my wall in payment for my goods." When the wall was finished the artisan cried: "Come and buy." But those who would buy could not lift their goods over the wall. So the artisan said: "Send, then, less gold than formerly." But they replied: "We have no gold." Then said the artisan in his heart: "I have much gold. I have much goods. I will enjoy my riches." And he said to the others: "Come and let us talk and be merry together." But they said: "We cannot. We must seek someone who will buy our goods." So the artisan was left to his own riches and his own thoughts. And his goods being more than he could consume, rotted. And his thoughts, being only his own, grew tiresome. Then he said in his heart: "I shall pull down the wall. I shall buy with my gold. And when I have goods I will exchange goods for goods, services for services. For a man cannot live unto himself." To-day this fable is being enacted by the nations. Many are still building their tariff walls. Many are viewing with declining satisfaction the high barriers to commercial intercourse which they already have built. Some have begun to realize that such "protection" tends not merely toward commercial stagnation, but toward intellectual isolation and international bitterness. They are learning that national well-being obtained behind walls may prove to be of a most transitory nature. In a world where invention is offering unlimited possibilities of communication, and in which, as a result, peoples are learning how much they have in common, it is not too much to predict that even the most prosperous countries will soon be saying in their hearts: "A nation cannot live unto itself."

WHAT DO YOU OWE TO YOUR PARENTS?

By T. S. DENHAM

THE brilliant young man who has exceedingly dull parents and the beautiful young girl whose mother and father are far from good looking are known to all of us. Yet the young man owes his brilliance to his parents, just as the beautiful girl owes her looks to her mother and father. This question of inheritance is still something of a mystery, but, from a very tangled skein, scientists are beginning to sort out one or two threads, and they are giving us a fascinating story in the process. Men have always realised that there is such a thing as heredity. The earliest records show that men never imagined a newly-born creature was a separate creation, only accidentally like its parents. But as soon as men began trying to explain or to foresee what a child would inherit they became involved in a maze of apparent contradictions. The brilliant musician produces a child that is deaf to the beauty of sounds; the frail wife has a huge son of immense strength. Inheritance seems to be one of the most erratic things in an erratic world.

A child may seem to owe everything to one parent or to the other, or it may seem to owe a little to both, or it may bear no resemblance to either. Again, it may have some quality or feature that belonged to its grandparents and was not to all appearances present in its parents. On the other hand, some pronounced family feature, like the famous Hapsburg chin, may appear generation after generation, in spite of continual out-marriages.

But heredity is not a matter of chance. It is certain that there are laws governing inheritance, although these laws are as yet a sealed book. Marvellous things have been discovered in experiments with the lower animals and plants when many generations can be produced in a few years. Observation of human attributes points to the fact that, although vastly more complicated in many cases, inheritance is still on the same lines and follows the same laws.

What exactly do we owe our parents? We can inherit what is inherent in our parents—what they were born with, and in turn inherited from their parents. The stress is on the word "can," because often we do not, sometimes to our loss, and sometimes to our gain. But do we inherit qualities which our parents have acquired during their lifetime, as distinct from those which they inherited from their parents? Most experts believe that these "acquired qualities" cannot be passed on by heredity. If a man is maimed in an accident, he does not pass on these defects to his children. On the other hand, some believe that certain acquired qualities can be made hereditary, at any rate after a few generations. If, for instance, a number of people worked underground, after some years they would find it easier to see in semi-darkness, and it has been contended that after a few generations children would be born with an aptitude for seeing in the semi-darkness.

On the other hand, mice have had their tails removed for many generations, and the youngsters of the last generation have been born with tails as perfect as those of the original ancestors. It is a point on which many famous biologists are working, but the general expectation is that they will prove negative. There is another interesting class of inheritable qualities—those that you owe to your mother, but which she does not know. A mother passes these qualities to her sons, and in this way they may skip a generation—an awkward and misleading thing, since these qualities are disadvantageous. They include colour-blindness, inability to see in a faint light, and that distressing complaint haemophilia, the sufferer from which is likely to bleed to death from a minute cut, because the blood will not clot. It would not ordinarily occur to anyone that a perfectly normal woman could pass these defects to her sons. But we know that the daughter of an afflicted man can and does pass them on to her children.

One particular inheritance, a wobbling of the toes, has been found to pass only in the male line, from father to son. Here, in my event, we cannot blame the woman!

Many people are prejudiced against the study of heredity because, they complain, it deals with abnormalities. We try to find out whether colour-blindness is transmissible, and do not worry about a gift for painting. This is merely because doctors and scientists have more chance of studying abnormal persons, just as they are more concerned with sickness than health. Good qualities are just as inheritable as bad ones.

Whatever you may owe to your parents, and whatever you may pass on to your children, it is certain that you cannot alter the inheritance by "taking thought." Wishing and regretting will have no effect whatever. But you have one big responsibility. Forewarned is fore-armed. In spite of heredity, we are reasoning beings, and excepting mental deficiency, a tendency is not a compulsion. I may have inherited a bad quality and may pass it on to my son. But I know the existence of the tendency to, shall we say, bad temper, and I can take steps from the earliest days to see that he learns to control himself. I cannot prevent him inheriting the temper—but I can show him how to avoid the disadvantages that often accompany it. It is the same with colour-blindness. If the tendency is there, then a visit to a specialist, and the banning of certain occupations such as artist, engine-driver, and chauffeur, are indicated.

We cannot ignore what we owe our parents. But we need not be slaves to our inheritance. Your parents may leave you a few pounds—but you can build up a fortune in the physical and mental sense, and your children will benefit.

By ROBERT MAGILL.

IF you are a downtrodden worm like me, who dines out once in twelve months, you usually hate the waiter for several reasons. One is that his dress suits him better than yours, and another is that a waiter can take one look at you and conclude that you have been saving up for months to get the treat, and that to-morrow it will be bread and cheese and cocoa, as usual. Wherefore you might like to know how to make the waiter hate you back.

First, don't let him select your table. True, it is his job to sort out the guests so that the better-looking ones sit in the middle where they can be seen, and to see that no woman sits near another if their gowns clash. But this is a free country. Demand, in a loud voice, that table THERE, preferably if it is a table for two, and there are four in your party. This makes all the waiters in the place jump to it and upsets all their arrangements for the evening.

Having sat down, look round superciliously and remark audibly that you hope nobody who knows you will come in and see you in a place like this, then send for the head waiter to ask why you have a dirty tablecloth. You won't see much more of him during the evening, so make the most of him now. By a judicious glance in the mirror you can work up a suitable snarl with which to scan the menu and inquire why there is nothing eatable on it. If the waiter suggests a dish, order some—(Continued on Page 4.)

BRITAIN TACKLES UNEMPLOYMENT ISSUES

BACK TO THE LAND

—By Mr. Lloyd George.

COMMONS DEBATE ON UNEMPLOYMENT

POOLING IDEAS

THE PRIME MINISTER'S CONTRIBUTION

London, Nov. 7. Agriculture, like other industries, must use the tariff protection afforded to work out its own salvation, declared Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, during to-day's debate on unemployment.

The Government, he said, intends to increase the efficiency of British work and to open markets.

Subsequent speakers showed the existence of an incipient revolt among the Conservatives, who urged preferential treatment for agriculture.

Mr. Lloyd George, advocating small holdings, said that not one per cent. of labourers in Britain owned any land. Two hundred million pounds would suffice for a scheme of small holdings, while the present system of the dole would require four hundred millions.

POOLING IDEAS. The debate on unemployment, in which all parties are pooling their ideas in a common search for remedies, is expected to last for three days.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, making his contribution, urged that the country must concentrate upon the stimulation of trade in order to create a national demand for labour.

ABSORBING LABOUR. The whole of the economic possibilities must be surveyed and the information applied with a view to absorbing labour.

The real trouble in Britain was that it was a part of a world struck by an economic blizzard. Until that was over, until the markets of the world had been opened and the production of the world had been regularised, unemployment, which was fundamentally an international problem must remain.

He placed great reliance and great hopes on the International Economic Conference to which Lausanne had been the necessary introduction.

There was very little hope of real healthy and natural trade until accommodations were reached for the exchange of goods. Until that was done there could be no return of prosperity to any European state.

He was convinced that the land must play a greater part than it had hitherto done in schemes for assisting the unemployment problem.

EXPERT ADVISERS. The Government were now devising ways to assist agriculture, but that industry must prove that it was using the tariffs to advance its efficiency in marketing and in other directions.

The Government was also in contact with expert advisers as to how to promote and how effect could be given to such schemes as hydrogeneration, housing and slum clearance.

Mr. Arthur Greenwood, Labour, who followed, declared that what was required for the restoration of the basic industries was essential.

Mr. Lloyd George strongly advocated the development of the small holding which employed a large amount of labour and provided training for later agricultural employment. At least a million workers should be placed actually on the soil or in ancillary occupations.

MEAT PRICES. Replying to the debate, Major Walter Elliott announced that River Plate importers had agreed to a cut of twenty per cent. in supplies of mutton and lamb and of ten per cent. in supplies of chilled beef for a few weeks and twenty per cent. if prices did not improve.

Australian and New Zealand representatives were anxious to co-operate. They were communicating with their governments forthwith.

Major Elliott expressed the opinion that there would be a reduction of shipments of mutton and lamb by ten per cent. in the next two months, which would create an entirely new situation for British livestock. —Reuter and British Wireless.

MORE WORKERS EMPLOYED

BUT STILL BELOW LAST YEAR

London, Nov. 7. A substantial diminution in the number of unemployed was shown in the return issued to-night by the Ministry of Labour.

The return shows that on 24th October there were approximately 9,397,000 insured persons, aged sixteen to sixty-four, in employment in Great Britain. This was 246,000 more than the month before, but 51,000 less than the year before.

Of the increase since 26th September in the numbers of insured persons in employment, approximately one-half is due to resumption of work upon the termination of the dispute in the manufacturing section of the cotton industry.

Unemployed on the register on October 24th numbered 111,000 less than the month previously. —British Wireless.

ARMISTICE DAY CEREMONY

CHINESE MEMORIAL ARCH PLANS

The following is an outline of the ceremony which is to take place at the Chinese Memorial Arch on Armistice Day at 11.45 a.m.:

His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government with His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, the O.C., Troops, Hongkong Area, and the Senior Royal Air Force Officer will be met at the foot of the Botanic Garden steps by the Chinese Members of Council, who will escort them up the steps to the Memorial.

"Last Post" will be sounded by Military Buglers. Then there will be a short pause followed by "Reveille."

His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government will then lay a wreath followed by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, the O.C., Troops, Hongkong Area, and the Senior Royal Air Force Officer.

Chinese Members of Council will then lay a wreath followed by Chinese Representatives on the Sanitary Board, Senior Members of the District Watch Committee, Chairman of the Tung Wah Hospital, Chairman of the Po Leung Kuk, and the Chairman of the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce.

Then wreaths will be laid by others who desire to do so.

Other Members of the Executive and Legislative Councils have also been invited to take their places beside the Memorial Arch.

"Last Post" and "Reveille" will be blown by buglers of the South Wales Borderers, and a body of Chinese from the Chinese portion of the 10th Company Royal Engineers will parade under a British Officer.

The steps leading up to the Memorial Arch will be lined by special Police Reserves, and a detachment of District Watchmen will parade under Inspector Shattin.

SERVANT SENT TO PRISON

Wong Lai, 30, was sentenced to a total of four months' hard labour by Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court to-day for burglariously entering Austin Barracks with intent to commit a felony, and for the theft of a tin of black pepper.

The police stated that the arrest of the accused was brought about by Lance Sergeant French. Noticing a door in the kitchen open, he brought an Army policeman to the spot, and together they entered the kitchen, where they encountered the accused. He had apparently been disturbed by their entry, and a capacious sack which he had brought along with him lay empty on the ground.

He was also found to have a key which fitted most of the locks in the place. The pantry at the time was fully stocked with rations for the soldiers' consumption on the following morning.

Accused, said the police, was employed as an assistant to the military cooks on a monthly wage of $15. He lived in the servants' quarters, which were quite a long way from the kitchen.

UNEMPLOYMENT COMMISSION'S REPORT

FIRST LINE OF DEFENCE

London, Nov. 8.

Development of schemes for vocational training of the unemployed is among the principal recommendations in the final report of the Unemployed Insurance Commission, which was issued to-night.

The Commission is also of the opinion that, in the main, the Means Test should follow set rules in all parts of the country. The Commission was presided over by Judge Holman Gregory, who, with four other members, signed the main report. There is a minority report signed by two other members, but the recommendations of the Commission on many points are unanimous.

BASIS OF LEGISLATION.

The Report is expected to form the basis of legislation in the Parliamentary Session which begins a fortnight hence.

The main proposals of the Report are, briefly, a dual system of insurance and relief.

The insured worker who has paid a minimum number of contributions will be entitled to a fixed payment for a limited time without enquiring into his needs. Workers who are not insured, including those over the income limit of £250 per annum, and insured workers who have exhausted their insurance rights, will be relieved according to their needs under a relief service administered by the local authorities and supervised by the Minister of Labour.

FIRST DEFENCE LINE.

The retention is recommended of an unemployment insurance scheme substantially on the lines of that at present in force, as the "first line of defence for the great majority of the unemployed," and it is made clear that such a scheme, together with the unemployment assistance scheme which they propose, should be linked up with arrangements for training and occupation of the unemployed.

The Ministry of Labour should be generally responsible for the control and development of the new service for maintaining, through the employment exchanges, contact between persons affected by the service and opportunities of employment, and for ensuring that the test of needs is administered in accordance with uniform principles throughout the country.

BEARING THE COST.

Some variations between areas may be desirable by reason of differences, but they should be limited.

The main cost of the new service should be borne by the Exchequer, but local authorities should contribute a share, as they must have a financial interest in their decisions. The principles for the guidance of local authorities in making grants under the proposed scheme of unemployment assistance, separate from the Poor Law, are as follows:

Assistance should be subject to proof of need.

The need of the applicant should be judged after assessment of the resources of the household of which he is a member.

The amount of payment must be less than wages.

The standards to be established should be those which experience shows to be required to relieve need.

FLEXIBILITY NEED.

The Commission express the view that the insurance scheme must possess flexibility in order to permit adjustment to changing industrial conditions, and recommend the establishment of an independent Statutory Commission as an advisory body to the Minister of Labour and to keep the scheme constantly under review. This body would report annually on the finances of the scheme and make suggestions for keeping the Insurance Fund solvent and self-supporting.

The Commission warmly commend the existing schemes, official and voluntary, for providing young unemployed with vocational training, and urge that they be developed. —British Wireless.

U.S. GOES TO THE POLLS

the East. Thanks to the conservatism of that section and the antagonism of many of Al Smith's admirers—even though that hostility may have been lessened by the recent public reunion of the two leaders at Albany—he faces a situation which may yet defeat him through the loss of New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey.

It is, however, no longer argued that a Democratic candidate cannot be elected without carrying New York's 46 electoral votes, but Mr. Roosevelt's failure to carry his home State might, in certain circumstances, make his task a lot harder. New York is now regarded as doubtful. If they cannot win New York, the Democrats expect to effect that loss by taking Ohio, Illinois and Indiana, with a total of 69 electoral votes. They talk, not unreasonably, of carrying Illinois by 500,000 votes, Ohio by 200,000 or 300,000 and Indiana by 100,000.

47 VOTES MIGHT WIN.

Most prognosticators give Roosevelt a minimum of 150 certain electoral votes to start with—those of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. Add Illinois, Ohio and Indiana, and Roosevelt would have 219, needing only 47 more to win.

If there is anything to the almost unanimous reports of great Roosevelt strength in the West, he would have no trouble in picking up those 47. Among the States almost certain to go for him, are Nebraska with 7 electoral votes, Washington 8, Montana 4, Maryland 8, Oregon 5, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico with 3 each, Kentucky 11 and Minnesota 11.

He has a real chance in such normally Republican states as Kansas, Iowa, California, Idaho, North and South Dakota, Wisconsin, Colorado, Utah and Wyoming, with a combined electoral vote of 79. And as things stand, he is assured of breaking into several of them. The straw votes in Iowa and California, for instance, show him well ahead.

CARGO BOAT'S ADVENTURE ENCOUNTERS HEAVY WEATHER

Heavy seas were encountered by a cargo boat which left Hongkong on Sunday with a consignment of sugar, salt and matches for Tak Mun Island. Beyond having to discard part of the cargo however, the boat was not damaged and returned to the Colony yesterday to make a report of the experience of the crew.

The report was made by Tse Lun, aged 30, the owner of a Class 4 cargo boat of 148 piculs capacity. He stated that at daybreak on Sunday he left Hongkong for Tak Mun Island with a cargo of 41 sacks of sugar, six sacks of salt and a quantity of matches. When near Tam Kung Tau that evening, the boat was endangered owing to the strong wind and heavy seas.

The crew immediately set about cutting away the main mast and sails, also threw part of the cargo overboard to lighten the craft. As a result, the storm was successfully ridden out.

SHANGHAI'S SOCCER TRIAL

PRACTICE BADLY REQUIRED

Shanghai's first trial in preparation for the forthcoming Interport football contest with Hongkong indicated that although the northerners were in the position to place a strong combination in the field, much practice was needed before the team reached the peak of its form.

The trial match staged at the Canidrome drew a crowd of 15,000 who saw Y. Y. Chow's side defeat S. V. Gash's eleven by five goals to two.

NEED PRACTICE.

Due to the fact that the players got together for the first time, though some had been playing in the name team there was some lack of combination. Individually, however, most players showed up well. Undoubtedly, when the actual eleven is selected, a lot of practice will be devoted in order to put on the finishing touches. Among the two sets of forwards, Lawton of East Lancs proved to be an able leader and sharp shooter. Given better understanding between the men on his sides, he should cause plenty of trouble for opposing defences. K. K. Chen, the inside right, displayed clever footwork but, unfortunately, he has not yet developed the vital quality of a forward in hard driven within scoring ranges. He is more suited to play in the intermediate line than in the attacking department.

H. K. Zeng, the inside left, treated the spectators with fine headings, being productive of points which David, the goalie, found no means to save as the ball went into the top corner of the net. Favacho and Aldeguer, the wingmen, crossed over several beautiful centres and judging on the exhibition, they deserved to represent this city for the inter-club match unless some better wingers could be discovered to replace them. Chow's forwards showed a little better cohesion than Gash's quintette.

WESTWOOD GOOD.

Westwood played a fine game in the right of the half line, allowing Z. H. Van, a new player of the Tung Hwa Club, to run away on only a few occasions while Y. H. Zee, the centre-half, was good in intercepting the opponents' raids. Hurry was well in the fore in guarding his man. Y. Y. Fung and N. Lee were dependable fullbacks, though Lee seemed to possess a heftier kick in clearing the ball. Y. Y. Chow, captain of Hwa, and leading goals of Shanghai, was given few opportunities to show his wares.

FINE DEFENCE.

For Gash's side, the defenders did some sterling work. David executed some lovely saves and the five points scored against him were really difficult shots for any goalie to stop. Marenal and Stokes were successful in warding off many attacks. Gash put up some constructive play in feeding his men but he needs more training to come up to his old-time form. K. Y. Doog played like a Trojan, covering more ground than any other half-backs. Baker did not impress spectators much, and in the second half, he was replaced by Collet.

VAN A PASSENGER.

N. Z. Lee, the centre-forward, was rather slow on the ball. "Ducky" Chen was evidently out of his usual position as inside left. "Ducky" is a left winger and is also a reliable half-back. Recently he has been playing at centre-forward. Z. H. Van was a passenger during the greater part of the game while Keats and Burns on the right flank managed to break through on more occasions.

TWO GOALS SCORED.

In the 15th minute, Y. H. Zee swung a long pass to Aldeguer who slipped to Lawton. Stokes was beaten in the race with Lawton who dribbled up to put the ball in the corner of the net for the opening goal. About five minutes later Lawton again went through the defence to register the second point. At interval, the score was two to nil in favour of Chow's team.

Soon after resumption and after a fine piece of combination, H. K. Zeng again headed through to bring the score to four to nil. Gash's forwards then bucked up immediately after the place kick and in a fine teamwork between Burns, Lee and Chen, the last named scored in the goal-mouth for Gash's side.

TO-DAY'S TRIAL.

What the selectors hope will prove to be the final trial before choosing the Hongkong Interport team is being held this afternoon at Caroline Hill, when the Association's representatives meet a Navy side. Several changes have been made in the constitution of the Trial team to that of a week ago, now forwards having been brought in, including Wong Mee-shun, Suen Kam-shun and Johnson, the latter being leader of the Police attack.

But the forward line is not the only problem confronting the selectors and keen and anxious eyes will be scanning the team as a whole in order to discover where it can be strengthened.

The Interport Trial eleven will line up as follows:
Rodger: Martin and Strange, Diles, Barber and Duncan; H. Goan, Wong Mee-shun, Johnson, Suen Kam-shun and Baldry.

INTER-VARSITY SPORTS

LINGNAN EASILY WIN BASKETBALL.

Hongkong the Tennis

Gaining an overwhelming victory in the basketball, a reverse in the men's tennis, but a further success in the ladies tennis, the Lingnan University who visited the Hongkong Varsity on Sunday carried off the honours of the day.

The exceptionally fine play of Szeto Hui of Lingnan who scored time after time for his team was the chief cause of the downfall of the local underdogs in the basketball match by 54 goals to 26. J. F. Chan and Y. K. Kwok were outstanding for Hongkong, but Canton enjoyed a marked superiority in team work.

Despite the very strong team put on to the courts by the visitors, the Hongkong Varsity succeeded in winning the tennis, H. N. Lee and N. Y. Ng winning their singles for the home team.

TENNIS SCORES

H. N. Lee (H.K.) beat Au Wang 3-6, 6-0, 6-0.
P. P. Kho (H.K.) lost to Chan Kul-ping 3-6, 4-6.

Y. K. Ng (H.K.) beat Joe Hui 6-4, 6-3.
Y. F. Chew and H. N. Lee (H.K.) lost to W. Y. Au and K. P. Chan 6-2, 4-6, 1-6.

D. J. N. Anderson and L. A. da Silva (H.K.) beat W. T. Ko and H. C. Lok 6-1, 1-6, 6-1.

THE LADIES.

Only the odd rubber separated the ladies teams, which ended in favour of Lingnan, the scores being:

A. Wood (H.K.) lost to F. Hotung 8-6, 9-11, 1-6.
R. Parry (H.K.) beat H. Chan 6-1, 6-0.

P. C. Kwok and W. F. Wook (H.K.) lost to F. Hotung and H. Chan 4-6, 2-6.

WATER POLO.

In the Y.M.C.A. bath yesterday afternoon, the home team defeated H.M.S. Olympus at water-polo by eight goals to one. The naval team was completely outclassed, their goal being penetrated four times in the first half in reply to their one effort.

The second half again showed the "navy" in the ascendancy. They dominated play almost throughout, and scored four more goals.

SIX GOALS SHARED WITH PHOENIX

PLAYER RETURNS AFTER HAVING HEAD STITCHED

The Police only just managed to preserve their unbeaten hockey league record when they met H.M.S. Phoenix in a Mamak Shield game yesterday, the teams sharing six goals.

At one stage during the second half the Police were 3-1 in arrears, but they rallied magnificently and obtained the equaliser a few minutes before the close.

The exchanges were very keen throughout and the teams crossed over with a goal each to their credit, but the sailors exerted unexpected pressure early in the second period and jumped into a lead which looked good enough to spoil the Police record.

The game swung completely round after this, and the home-sters literally bombarded the Phoenix goal resulting in a couple of quick points being secured.

Perkins, Harris and Kartar Singh were responsible for netting the Police tally, whilst Barnett (2), and Prior were the Phoenix marksmen.

RETURNS TO GAME FROM HOSPITAL

A plucky piece of sportsmanship was displayed by Lance-Corporal Groves of the South Wales Borderers yesterday, when, playing in an inter-platoon match, he sustained a severe cut on the head from a hockey stick. He received treatment at the French Hospital and then returned to resume his part in the game.

The match was between the 7th and 5th platoons of the Borderers, resulting in a win for the 7th by two clear goals.

Through the mediation of Mr. M. K. Lo, legal adviser of the South China Athletic Association, the disputants and drawers of the first four points in the Autumn Champion's cup sweep, organized by the S.C.A.A., have now come to terms in their division of the stake money amounting to over $158,000.

Although in accordance with the Jockey Club regulations, dividends on the pari-mutuel at Happy Valley were paid to the supporters of Champagne Bay, the drawer of Wonderful Sting, the pony which came in second, a woman named Lum King Yui, wrote to the S.C.A.A. General Committee protesting about the provision of the first prize money, amounting to $109,000 to the drawer of Champagne Bay, on the ground that it was suspended after the race. Then followed fruitless efforts by the S.C.A.A. Committee members to bring the disputants to a settlement and the assistance of Mr. M. K. Lo was asked. It is understood that at one time both disputing parties engaged counsel in readiness to fight out the issue in the Court of Justice.

The mediation of Mr. Lo and the General Committee however eventually succeeded in arranging a general settlement, resulting in Mr. Li Cheung, drawer of Champagne Bay, getting $55,000, Lum King-yui, $70,000, Messrs. Ip Fung-sang and Lau Hing-chung, joint owners of the ticket drawing Ajax, the third pony, $21,600 between them, and Messrs. Tan Eng-hoo and Soo Pul-chen, joint owners of the ticket drawing Indiana, the third pony, $10,500 between them.

U.S. STOKER IN TROUBLEDISTURBANCE AT A RESTAURANT

Joseph Elmer Kaiel, a stoker in the U.S.S. Pope was charged before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court, to-day, with riotous and disorderly conduct at Kato's Restaurant at Johnston Road, Wanchai, last night.

Detective Sub-Inspector Rosenkwy, prosecuting, stated that, accompanied by another foreigner in civilian attire, Kaiel went to the Restaurant at 9.15 last night and kicked at the door for admittance. Once inside the pair began to make trouble.

Kato went to the Police Station to report the matter, and, during his absence, Kaiel continued to create a disturbance. He picked up an iron door-bar and chased the inmates about. He attempted to get away through the back door when the police arrived, but was arrested by Sgt. Williamson.

Kaiel, who admitted the charge, but had nothing to say, was fined $10, and also ordered to pay compensation to the restaurant to the extent of $15 for damage done to furniture.

DISORDERS AT
KIANGWANVILLAGERS ATTACK
POLICE FORCE

A mob of over 1,000 villagers, most of whom were women and children, held a demonstration in front of the Kiangwan village administration office for nearly seven hours on Friday, stoning the office building and battling with the policemen and volunteers who were despatched there to maintain order. Owing to the ugly mood of the demonstrators, the guardians of law were compelled at times to charge the mob with batons, resulting in a temporary alleviation in the situation. Two special squads of armed officers were sent to the village by the Nantao Public Safety Bureau and the mob was dispersed about four o'clock in the afternoon.

Children and adults too—require sufficient Vitamin B if they are to enjoy health and vitality. Modern diets are surprisingly low in this important constituent of strength and vigour.

That unmistakable "GLOW" of Radiant Health

The strong, sturdy, vitally alive child is the result of a well-balanced diet that contains sufficient Vitamin B. When the diet does not supply enough of this vitamin, Squibb Chocolate-Vitavose will prove a new and extremely valuable diet supplement that increases appetite, aids digestion, adds weight and corrects intestinal sluggishness. It is a rich source of Vitamin B. Children and adults thrive on it and love its delicious and refreshing taste.

U.S. PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

MR. HOOVER FEELS CONFIDENT

New York, Nov. 7.

Mr. Hoover is stated to be more confident of victory than at any time during the past three months as a result of the enthusiastic crowds which have flocked to welcome him on route to California. A huge throng cheered his arrival at Denver. Mr. Hoover refused to discuss politics on his day of rest except to say that "All will be fed, if very citizen does his duty."

Mr. Hoover's campaign received a last minute fillip by a cautious speech by Senator Borah at Boise, Idaho. He said those who held that the present administration was responsible for the depression were unfit to deal with a question which they must first learn to understand. After casting an absentee vote for an unknown candidate, Senator Borah entrusted for Washington. He is still enigmatical about his real sympathies, but is determined to fight to the last ditch against the repeal of prohibition, which he said would mean "Hell on earth" for America.

Mr. Roosevelt rested on Sunday at his residence at Hyde Park, New York, preparatory to launching another drive in New York State to-day. Hundreds of motorists tooted their horns outside till Mr. Roosevelt emerged and wearily thanked them for their good wishes. —Reuter.

LEAGUE CRITICISED.

MR. MATSUOKA GIVES VIEWS TO PRESSMAN

Shanghai, Nov. 7.

"If the League continues to maintain its past attitude, Japan will not hesitate to withdraw from it," Mr. Matsuoka is reported to have told a Japanese pressman at Moscow, adding that the most important factor in maintaining world peace and promoting international understanding "is that the Japanese Government should listen to the opinion of the League and the League should listen to Japan."

Mr. Matsuoka criticised America's attitude, which he said was based, firstly on the apprehension that establishment of the Manchukuo would impede trade with the Far East, and secondly the idea that creation of a new State was incompatible with international justice. He hoped the American people would reconsider the position. —Reuter.

CHARITY FUNCTION.

SATURDAY'S DINNER DANCE AT PENINSULA HOTEL.

Every effort is being made to bring about a successful night at the Peninsula Hotel next Saturday, November 12, when as previously intimated, under the distinguished patronage of Mrs. W. T. Southern, and conjointly with the Peninsula Hotel management, the New Territories Medical Benevolent Society have arranged for a special dinner dance to take place in the attractive Rose Room and Roof Garden.

The object is a particular effort to raise funds for the promotion of the Society's medical activities in the New Territories. It is undoubtedly a deserving project and should meet with hearty support.

The function extends from 8.30 a.m. till 2 a.m. and no effort has been spared to make it interesting and enjoyable. A special entertainment is to follow the dinner, when at intervals several features will be presented.

Mrs. R. Ferreolo, a charming vocalist, will render songs, Mrs. H. Melin, an accomplished and delightful exponent of classical dances will give displays of this attractive art, and the well-known and popular cabaret dancers "Hugo" and "Josephine" will provide exhibitions of ball-room artistic dance numbers.

Table reservations may be effected at both the Hongkong Hotel and Peninsula Hotel, and Dr. P. I. Tsoung, Honorary Secretary and Treasurer of the Society, will take care of arrangements regarding bookings for Chinese patrons.

SWISS CHARGED

SAID TO HAVE ADMITTED "NECKING"

The prosecution yesterday closed its case against Henry Urmil, Swiss subject carrying on the business of a motor-engineer at Wanchai, who is charged with indecently assaulting Chung Wan, a 20-year-old girl. The hearing was resumed before Mr. Schofield.

Det. Inspector W. Shannon stated that on the night in question he received a report from Inspector Stimson, of Shaokwan, following which he took the girl in a Police car to Henry's Auto Service garage, at Nos. 447-457, Lockhart Road.

As they approached the garage, the girl pointed excitedly to a

GOING SHORTLY

"SUNSHINE SUSIE"

European and said, "That's he; that's he."

Urmil, who came forward at this moment, was then told of the charge against him. He denied it and said: "This is blackmail. I admit 'necking'."

Inspector Shannon: I asked him what he meant by "necking" and he said: "You know, making love."

Later witness brought Urmil to the Central Police Station and formally charged him there.

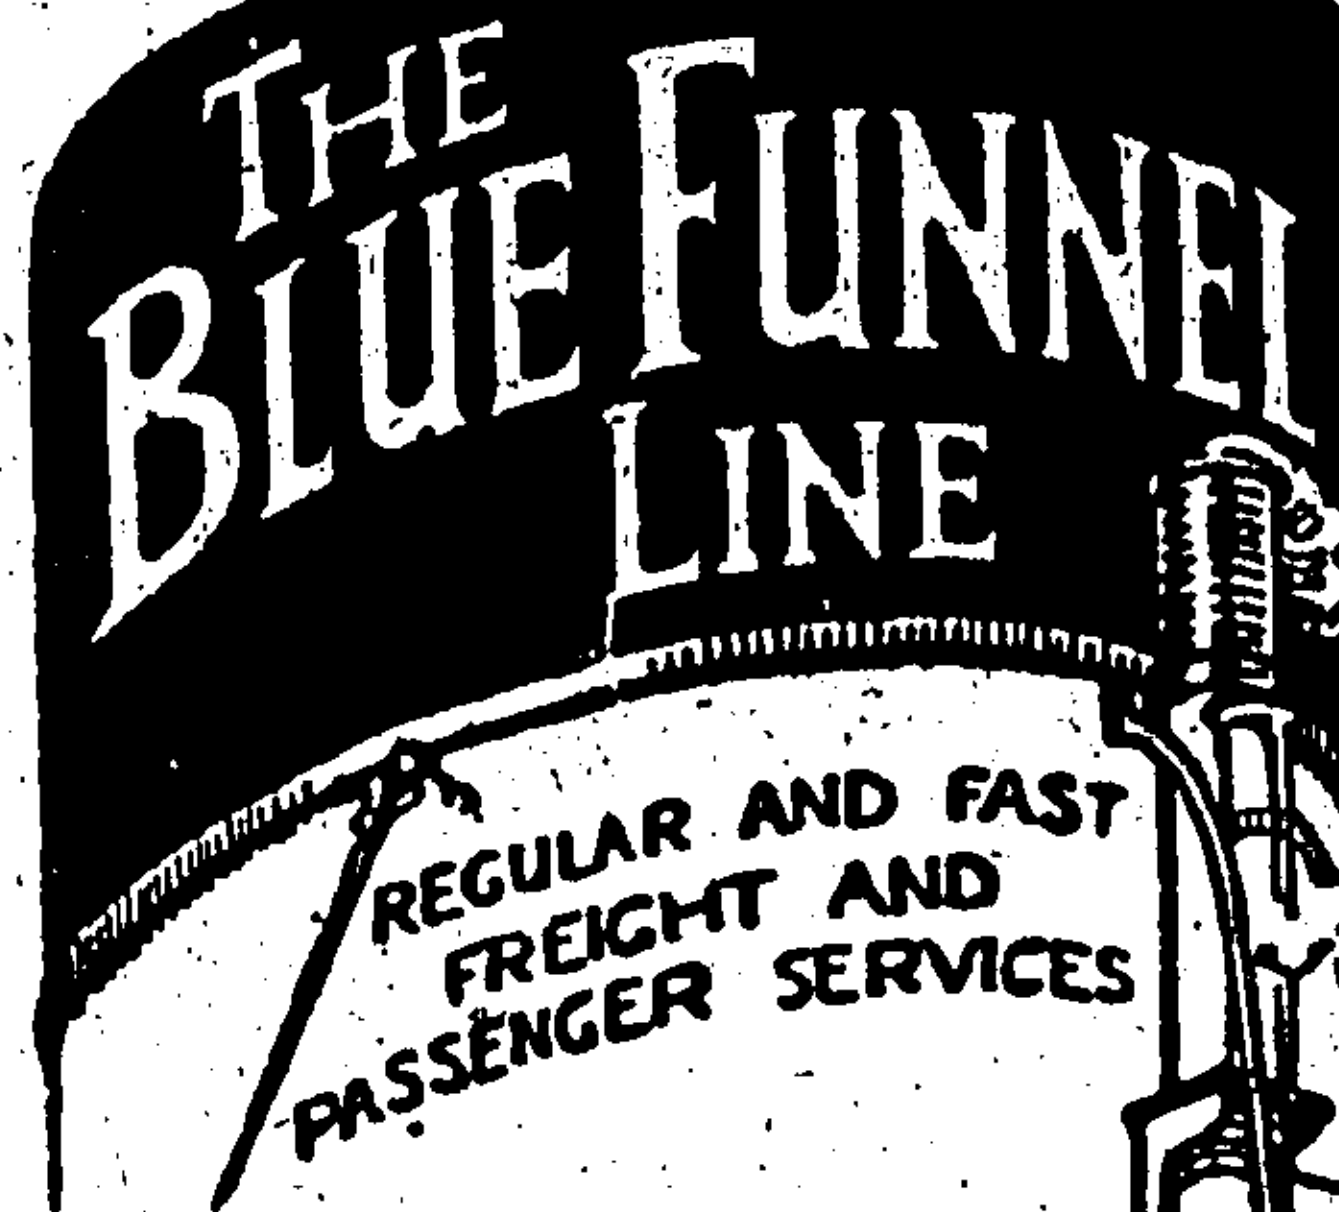

The following morning he examined the Austin car in which Urmil and the girl were said to have been, this for signs of a struggle, but found none, except for a few scratches on the dashboard which had recently been painted over.

The case for the prosecution was indicated as closed at this point, and Mr. Schofield then fixed tomorrow afternoon for the opening of the defence by Mr. W. A. Mackintay, who is representing the accused.

HOTEL FUNCTIONS.

ENJOYABLE WEEK-END AT REPULSE BAY

The gala night at the Repulse Bay Hotel on Guy Fawkes Day, last Saturday, was the occasion for an enjoyable evening to the large number of diners participating in the special dinner dance festival, which was carried on until 1 a.m. An exceptional attraction was the clever performance of "The Joy Fun Toy Company," reputed China's foremost troupe of acrobats and jugglers. Excellent dances and music were also afforded by the Hongkong Hotel's new dance orchestra "The Revellers" (which play every afternoon at the Hongkong Hotel's roof garden tea dance). Amongst those present at the gala night were:

Hon. Mr. C. C. Alabaster, His Honour Sir J. H. Kemp, Capt. G. E. Mirohouse, Col. L. G. Bird and Party, Capt. Stewart and Party, Col. C. N. Hidding and Party, Mrs. Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Bladrick, Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Davenport-Brown, Mr. Rolfe, Mr. Lammert, Mr. Stopani Thomson, Capt. P. Green, Miss. Stevenson, Mr. W. D. Johnson, Miss. S. Swift, Miss. B. Bichen, Mr. H. Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Hersee, Mr. Lane and Party, Mr. Stokink and party, Mr. and Mrs. Repton and party, Mr. Galford and party, Mr. Bates and party, Mr. and Mrs. Finns, Mr. Somers and party, Mr. A. D. Bennett and party, Mr. Dullin, Mr. and Mrs. Williamson and party, Mr. K. G. Haig, Mr. and Mrs. Denison and party, Mr. and Mrs. K. Bougan, Mr. Keimann, Mr. Graham, Mrs. Chambers, Mr. and Mrs. A. Prested, Mrs. Varela, Mr. E. Ronillon, Mr. and Mrs. Dowdall, Mrs. Cartwright, Mr. and Mrs. Stellingwerf, Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Brearly, Mr. and Mrs. Fleming, Capt. K. A. Wilkins, Mrs. Pfennschmidt, Mr. T. N. Frost, Mr. A. D. Stein, Mr. H. C. Kuhn, Mr. Mancini.

Another function of a similar nature is being arranged to take place at the Repulse Bay Hotel on Saturday, December 3.

Sunday's Tea Dance.

Over 200 attended the tea dance on Sunday and enjoyed two hours of sociable recreation between 5 and 7 p.m. Similar tea dances will be held every Sunday at Repulse Bay throughout the winter season.

The Symphonic Concert.

The symphonic concert at the Peninsula Hotel last Sunday evening provided those present with a most enjoyable entertainment. The interesting instrumental compositions, mostly well-known favourites, which comprised the programme, were much appreciated, and Mr. Podolsky was accorded well deserved applause for his excellently executed solo "Cantilena" by Goldmann. The public support given to these concerts have been most gratifying, thereby encouraging their continuance.

FAREWELL DINNER

TRIBUTE TO ANZAC CO. INSTRUCTOR

The Anzac Company of the Hongkong Volunteer Defence Corps said good-bye to its instructor—Sergeant W. Gibbens at a steat and kidney pudding dinner held at Volunteer Headquarters last night.

Sergeant Gibbens, who is attached to the South Wales Borderers, leaves for home on Sunday. Since the formation of the Anzac Company he has been chief instructor in machine gun work and has been most popular with all ranks. Lieut. C. de S. Robertson presided over last night's gathering.

ARMISTICE DAY

PROGRAMME OF FRIDAY'S OBSERVANCE

The following official programme of the observance of Armistice Day next Friday has been issued:

The ceremony at 10.45 a.m., when all troops, choir, and representative bodies are to be in position. Shortly afterwards, the Officer Commanding the Troops, Hongkong, will arrive, followed later by the Commander-in-Chief, the Clergy, and His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government.

At 11.59, the massed buglers of the 1st Battalion, The Lincolnshire Regiment, and the 1st Battalion, The South Wales Borderers, will sound the "Last Post", and all Officers will salute.

At 11 sharp, one gun will be fired by one of H. M.'s ships, and the Silence will follow. At the end of two minutes the gun will fire a second round of black to terminate the silence.

The buglers will sound the "Reveille" immediately after the last sound of the second gun has died away, and the whole assembly will sing the hymn "O God Our Help in Ages Past." Copies of the hymn will be distributed prior to the ceremony.

This will be followed by prayers and the Blessing by the Clergy and the singing of God Save the King.

On conclusion of the hymn His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government will lay a wreath, followed by the Commander-in-Chief, the Officer Commanding the Troops, the Senior Air Force Officer, a representative of the Royal Merchant Navy, a representative of the Chinese community, representatives of foreign navies and armies should they so desire, representatives of the Royal Navy, Military and Air Force, British Legion, Old Comrades Associations, and all civilian bodies. Individuals may then lay wreaths.

Ceremony at Chinese Memorial.

On conclusion of the ceremony at the Consulate, His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, followed by the Commander-in-Chief, Officer Commanding the Troops, Officer Commanding the Royal Air Force, and those Members of Council, Judges and Senior Government officers desirous of attending the ceremony, will rendezvous at Government House and proceed to the Chinese Memorial on foot. They will arrive at about 11.45 and wreaths will be laid.

LOCAL DIVORCE LAW.

OPINION BY EDITOR OF CATHEDRAL MAGAZINE

A divorce bill is now before the Legislative Council, and we are to be "brought up to date" and into line with the rest of the Empire. There does not seem to have been any serious demand for these facilities, but doubtless the facilities will create demand.

We congratulate Mr. J. P. Braga on his courageous voice crying in the wilderness, and wholeheartedly agree with him in wishing that a different definition of the marriage to be affected by the bill had been framed. The definition as it stands is tantamount to a public statement by Government to Christian people that in taking the Church's marriage vows they are doing something unreasonable. We do not expect this attitude to have much effect upon Christians but we regard it as regrettable.

There seems to be little doubt that the bill will become law, and that we must expect divorce proceedings to be heard in the Supreme Court. We can only hope that steps will be taken to prevent the details of such proceedings from being recorded in the press, so that at least we may avoid the most harmful effects of publicity in such matters.—St. John's Cathedral Review.

HIGH MORALS
NEEDED

CANTON GENERAL'S
SPEECH

Canton, Nov. 7.

High moral character and decent living among public servants were again emphasised by General Chan Chai-tong, Commander-in-Chief of the First Group Army, at the weekly memorial service this morning.

Efforts to suppress gambling and other forms of dissipation by public servants, he said, have been enforced by the police and gen-darmes who are searching the restaurants, clubs, tea houses and other places to arrest Government servants engaging in gambling and other vices.

The General denounced unscrupulous merchants for smuggling, and said they usually sought the aid or connivance of officials. To prevent Government employees from engaging in smuggling the death penalty, he stressed, was being adopted.

Touching on bandit suppression, General Chan said the brigands in Hsueh mountain in South Kwangtung have been exterminated, and forests on the mountain are to be cleared and converted into villages so that the bandits will not be able to use them as lairs.—Central Press.

MANCHULI MUTINY

STORY OF WOMEN REFUGEES

JAPANESE CONSUL MALTREATED

Tokyo, Nov. 8.

The Japanese residents at Manchuli who fell into the hands of the Manchukuo mutineers, the troops of General Su Ping-wen, appear to be safe for the present, according to refugee women and children who were permitted to cross the border into Russia.

It seems, however, that they are not having an easy time and the story of how the Japanese Consul-General, Mr. Yamazaki, was beaten by Su Ping-wen's troops, forms a feature of a graphic account of the Manchuli situation related by the refugees to a special correspondent of the Tokyo Nichi-Nichi at Matveyskaya.

On the morning of September 2, when General Su Ping-wen's railway guards turned against the Manchukuo Government, Mr. Yamazaki was summoned to the headquarters of the local commander and was badly maltreated by the soldiers.

DETAINED AT CONSULATE.

He was kicked, his glasses were knocked off and he was injured in the right eye.

Later the troops detained him at the Japanese Consulate, upon which the mutineers have set a guard.

Fifty-four children and 67 women were permitted to go to Matveyskaya, where they are staying temporarily.—Reuter.

LATEST NAVAL MOVEMENTS

ADMIRAL KELLY DUE ON THURSDAY

The Commander-in-Chief, China Station, Admiral Sir Howard Kelly, K.C.B., C.M.G., M.V.O., will arrive in Hongkong on Thursday aboard his flagship, H.M.S. Kent. It is understood that the C-in-C. will remain in Hongkong during the whole of the winter. Lady Kelly, it will be remembered, arrived in Hongkong last week by the P. & O. liner Rajputana.

The Commander-in-Chief of the American Asiatic Fleet will arrive in Hongkong on board his flagship the U.S.S. Houston on Saturday next, and will remain in port for approximately a week. The Houston will be accompanied by the private yacht of the Commander-in-Chief, the Isabel.

The American destroyer flotilla which is now in port will leave for Manila to-morrow, and will be followed next day by the French flagship Primauguet, with the French Commander-in-Chief aboard.

SHANGHAI JUSTICE

DISTRICT COURT SYSTEM

M.P.'s SUGGESTION FOR REFORMS

London, Nov. 7.

In the House of Commons to-day, Mr. J. S. Wardlaw-Milne asked the Foreign Secretary whether any, and if so, what steps have been taken by the Government to provide for the revision of the agreement expiring on April 4 between the Chinese Government and the Powers representing the International Settlement relating to the Special District Court of Shanghai.

Sir John Simon, replying, said that no notice had been given to terminate the agreement.

The Foreign Secretary added that the proper measures to remedy the existing abuses of the system were under consideration and had been discussed between the British Charge d'Affaires and the Chinese authorities.

Mr. Wardlaw-Milne expressed the view that it was desirable to give notice if we were to get real reforms. He suggested that if the Government decided to give notice, they should endeavour to ascertain that the Municipal Council in Shanghai be fully consulted regarding necessary changes and be represented, if necessary, on any body established to consider them.

Sir John Simon said he would like time to consider the suggestion.—Reuter.
